342 Viet Cong Believed Dead In Big Battle

SAIGON (UPI)—American infantrymen killed an estimated 342 Viet Cong and wounded another 400 Friday in a fierce day-long battle on the eastern fringes of the "Iron Triangle" 35 miles north of Saigon, a military spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the infantrymen, backed by planes, artillery and armor, killed 146 Viet Cong by body count and that 196 more were estimated killed.

'LIGHT CASUALTIES'

He said the American infantrymen suffered only "light" casualties but much of their armor was shot to pieces by a deadly mortar barrage. Eight armored personnel carriers were destroyed along with three or four trucks.

The battle lasted seven hours before the infantrymen crushed the Communist assault. At times, the Americans depressed the muzzles of their 105-mm. Howitzers and fired point blank into the reds.

Early Friday morning, Guam-based B52 bombers blasted two suspected Viet Cong concentrations on the northern edges of the Communist - infested triangle about 45 miles north of here. No details on the strikes were disclosed.

The Viet Cong guerrillas stormed out of rubber plantations before dawn to attack American soldiers deployed along Highway 13 to protect a Vietnamese troop convoy.

"We stopped counting at 146," an officer told UPI correspondent Robert Ibrahim at American headquarters in the town of Lai Khe.

Other official spokesmen estimated that an additional 50 dead Communists lay in the underbrush and trenches around the battlefield along with an estimated 250 wounded.

While casualties were light, officers said much of their armor was shot to pieces by a deadly Viet Cong mortar barrage. Eight armored personnel carriers were destroyed along with three or four trucks.

The Viet Cong attack came from the little roadside village of Bau Bang, on the highway about six miles north of Lai Khe. It hit a company of infantrymen camped alongside a troop of armed personnel carriers, an artillery battery and the headquarters company of the 2nd Battalion, 2nd Infantry of the 1st U.S. Infantry Divisions.

Earthquake Hits In Los Angeles; Rolling Shocks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An earthquake shook Los Angeles on Friday afternoon, swaying high-rise apartments and office buildings with a series of rolling shocks. No damage was reported.

The quake was timed at 3:55 p.m. It apparently was centered in the heavily built-up area between downtown Los Angeles and the sea.

Adjacent counties said the tremor was not felt.

Dr. Charles Richter of the California Institute of Technology said the quake was of 3.7 magnitude, normally not strong enough to cause damage. The scale has no maximum, but the 1964 Alaska quake was rated at 8.4.

It had been on loan to the Fair's Vatican Pavilion from Vatican City. Also being returned is the statue "The Good Shepherd" by an unknown sculptor of the 4th century. Recovery Should Be Full For Ike

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's doctors said Friday night they saw no reason why the general should not make a complete recovery from two relatively mild heart attacks this week.

The medics said, however, they thought it may be necessary for him to remain in the Fort Gordon Army Hospital here for as long as two weeks.

Doctor Thomas C. Mattingly, Washington heart specialist who helped treat Eisenhower for his 1955 attack, and who has been in charge of the case here, said he thought on the basis of medical evidence Friday that Eisenhower had a "good" prognosis.

TRANSFER EXPECTED

Mattingly told reporters that Eisenhower's doctors still hope to move him to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington to continue his recuperation, but they would not speculate on a date.

Mattingly assured newsmen that such a move would not be undertaken until doctors were certain that the transfer could be made without hazard to their patient.

Mattingly and Dr. Harry Harper, an Augusta cardiologist, met reporters in a crowded, improvised press headquarters not far from the five room suite where Eisenhower is under constant watch by relays of doctors alert to even the slightest change in his condition.

Friday night's briefing was the longest session the doctors have held with reporters since Eisenhower entered the hospital Tuesday at 2 a.m., suffering from what medics termed a coronary insufficiency — an inadequate supply of blood to the heart muscle.

There was a second attack Wednesday afternoon. In each case there were chest pains normally associated with angina pectoris which has led gradually to a condition known by the doctors as a "myocardial infraction."

This term means damage to the muscles of the heart by insufficiency of blood. The insufficiency stems from narrowing of certain supplying blood vessels and sometimes the occlusion of one or more of these vessels.

A Necessity?

During the big anniversary celebration downtown Friday afternoon, a small, tired child asked, "Mommy, are all these people really necessary?"

First Return

Making her first return trip to her hometown today since being transferred several months ago to New Orleans is Miss Susan Landrum, daughter of Mrs. Rae Landrum of 217 Selman Dr., Monroe. "I don't know which of us is more excited," Mrs. Landrum said, "Susan or me."

Three Persons Killed When Plane Crashes

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Three persons were killed Friday when a two-engine private plane taking officials to a National Broadcasting Co. convention in Acapulco crashed on takeoff.

The American Broadcasting Co. is also holding its convention in the west coast resort center, and first reports had said they were ABC officials.

The dead were identified as:

—Romulo O'Farrill Avila, 22, director of press and promotion for the Telesistema Mexicana television chain, oldest son of Romulo O'Farrill Jr., editor of Novedades, Diario de la Tarde and the News. He was one of five children, and apparently next in line in the powerful newspaper-television chain.

—Fernando Diez Barroso, also an official of Telesistema, and son-in-law of Emilio Azcarraga, Mexican television magnate.

—Mrs. Alastair Murray MacKenzie, wife of the president and general manager of NBC International de Mexico S. A. She was the former Marcia Mercier Gerstle, an American.

MacKenzie, her husband and a British subject, was seriously injured as was the plane mechanic, Misael Robles Gomez. They were taken to a hospital nearby, and their condition was so critical MacKenzie was not told of his wife's death in the crash.

Byrd's Son Named To Senate Seat

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Harry Flood Byrd Jr. was appointed Friday to the U.S. Senate-a day after the retirement of his 78-year-old father.

Gov. Albertis S. Harrison Jr. put a quick end to political speculation by choosing the 50-year-old state senator, newspaper executive and orchard owner, a man closely attuned to the philosphy of conservative Harry F. Byrd Sr.

The governor announced the appointment at a special news conference just as he announced the senior Byrd's resignation Thursday.

ACCEPTS APPOINTMENT

At his Winchester home, Byrd accepted the appointment with an expression of gratitude and added: "I pledge to do all in my power to advance the best interests of our great nation."

The senior Byrd was re-elected by a record vote last year for a sixty six-year term. Under Virginia Law his son will serve under the governor's appointment only until the next regular election in November 1966.

Presumably, the new appointee—young by Senate standards —will offer for election for the four-year remainder of the unexpired term in that election. Virginia's other senator, A. Willis Robertson, comes up for reelection also at that time.

Harrison said he'd had only brief advance notice of the senior senator's retirement plans but had considered the eventuality for some time and had given much thought to who could best fill Byrd's shoes.

He reached the conclusion, he said, that Harry F. Byrd Jr. was best trained and equipped to "follow in the footsteps of his illustrious father."

Harrison telephoned Byrd in advance of the news conference and said Byrd accepted with an expression of thanks for the confidence placed in him.

Democratic Gov.-elect Mills E. Godwin, who will succeed Harrison in January, also was advised in advance, Harrison said, and concurred in the decision.

Harrison was asked how he felt about an assertion by an anti-Byrd organization Democrat that there would be resentment if he named the senator's son to succeed him.

"Resentment? No," said Harrison. "Disappointment? Yes. A lot of people aspire to be a United States senator."

U.S. Charters Boats To Bring Over Refugees

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI)—Two vessels capable of carrying more than 150 passengers each were chartered by the U.S. government Friday for "operation sealift" and both made ready to pick up refugees in Cuba immediately.

The Skipper K, an 85-foot sightseeing boat, was expected to reach Matanzas, Cuba, early today. There it will pick up about 110 Cubans and return here about 6 p.m. today.

The Skipper K will also carry two officers from the Immigration Service and will pick up only refugees cleared in advance.

The second vessel, the new Pan American, from Biloxi, Miss., is en route here and is expected to make its first crossing to Cuba on Monday.

About 2,000 Cubans are reported waiting at Matanzas to make the passage to Florida under Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's "open door" policy for many persons who wish to leave his Communist island.

The refugees being brought from Cuba were stranded at the exodus port of Camarioca last week when Castro stopped small boat pickups. Matanzas, a deep-water port, is close by Camarioca on the North Cuban coast.

Advance lists of passengers are being supplied to the United States by the Castro government. After screening by immigration and other officials the names of the refugees approved for departure are sent back to Havana via the Swiss embassy.

"Operation sealift" is expected to be cleaned up well in advance of the mass airlift of Cuban refugees into Miami starting about Dec. 1.

Some 3,000 to 4,000 Cubans will be flown from Varadero airport, near Matanzas, into Miami each month for the next two years, according to present plan. Most of them are expected to be resettled in other parts of the United States.

Tornado Rips Illinois Spreading Destruction

One Killed; Power Lines Knocked Out

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — A tornado demolished more than 150 houses and injured at least 58 persons Friday in Preston Heights and Sugar Creek — two unincorporated areas south of Joliet.

One death was reported in Channahon, 12 miles southwest of Joliet, where the twister also caused extensive damage.

The tornado demolished a transmission line tower and knocked out five lines from Commonwealth Edison's Dresden nuclear power station at the junction of the Kankakee and Des Plaines rivers. A large area south of Joliet was left without power, including the towns of New Lenox, Shorewood, Mokena and Channahon.

ESCAPES DAMAGE

An emergency Civil Defense hospital was set up in the East Joliet Fire Department station to treat the injured.

Joliet escaped damage except for one block on the south edge of the city.

The twister skirted Joliet and later touched down in Tinley Park, 16 miles east of Joliet on the Will-Cook County line. Six houses were destroyed and 25 persons reported injured in Tinley Park.

A tornado was reported later in Lake County, Ind. The towns of Highland Park, Munster and Black Oak reported considerable property damage and a number of injuries.

Earlier in the day, the twister hit a private airport and residential section in Streator, about 70 miles southwest of Joliet.

Damaging heavy winds also were reported in other parts of northeast Illinois during the day.

Chicago reported winds in excess of 40 miles an hour, but there was no significant storm damage in the city. Rain and some hail fell during the afternoon in the immediate Chicago area.

The woman killed in Channahon was Mrs. Herman Heisler, about 80, wh owas visiting the home of her daughter, Mrs. Richard Cusik. Authorities said the twister blew the house away and Mrs. Heisler was crushed by falling debris.

8 Astronauts Selected For Orbiting Lab

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Six Air Force and two Navy pilots were named Friday as the first Manned Orbiting Laboratory (MOL) astronauts in a program to orbit man in a "'shirt-sleeve" environment for as long as 30 days.

The eight men, ranging in age from 28 to 36, are the first of 20 aerospace research pilots who will be trained in the $1.5 billion program which received a presidential go-ahead in August. The first manned flights will be in 1968.

FROM LOUISIANA

Those Air Force pilots chosen were:

Maj. Michael J. Adams, 35, Sacramento, Calif.; Maj. Albert H. Crews, 36, Alexandria, La., originally chosen for the ill-fated Dyna-Soar project; Capt. Richard E. Lawyer, 33, Inglewood, Calif.; Capt. Lachlan MacCleay, 34, Redlands, Calif.; Capt. F. Gregory Neubeck, 33, Washington, D.C., and Capt. James M. Taylor, 34, Lewisville, Ark.

The Navy airmen picked for training at Edwards Air Force Base were Lt. John L. Finley, 29, Memphis, Tenn., and Lt. Richard H. Truly, 28, Meridian, Miss.

All have college degrees in engineering or physical science. They were introduced Friday at a news conference at the Air Force space systems division headquarters.

The MOL astronauts will be launched into space inside a modified Gemini spacecraft by a Titan 3 booster. After entering orbit, the two-man team will enter the laboratory attached to the spacecraft through a hatch in the heat shield.

The "shirt-sleeve" description is applied by the Air Force because the men will not have to wear space suits, even while orbiting the earth of a month's time.

Once the MOL crew is ready to return to earth, the two will go back into the Gemini spacecraft, detach the laboratory and re-enter the atmosphere for an ocean landing and pickup.

Partly Cloudy Skies Forecast

Maximum temperatures should be 66 to 74 degrees today and minimum readings are expected to be in the 48 to 52 degree range, according to the U. S. Weather Bureau.

Skies today and Sunday will be partly cloudy with 60 to 80 per cent possible sunshine today. No rainfall is indicated.

High Friday was 80 and the low reading was 57.

Temperatures during the coming six - day period should be three to seven degrees above normal. Normal highs are 66 to 71 and normal lows are 42-48 for this period of the season.

Security Council Against Rebellion

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council approved without a dissenting vote Friday a resolution condemning the declaration of independence by the "racist minority" in Rhodesia. It called also on all countries to withhold all aid and recognition from the regime headed by Prime Minister Ian Smith.

The action came at an urgent session of the council, where the United States announced the slapping of an arms embargo and other tough measures against Rhodesia in support of British efforts to end the rebellion in their central African Colony.

The vote on the resolution was 10-0 with one abstention—France. It abstained on the grounds that the issue was not an international dispute but one primarily of concern to Britain.

The vote came in the midst of the council debate, and was described as an "interim" measure to stress the concern of the council over the Rhodesian action. It foreshadowed even tougher council action at the conclusion of the debate.

FORCE RULED OUT

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg disclosed the U.S. measures at the meeting, where African spokesman demanded use of military force by Britain to bring Smith's government to its knees.

But British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart ruled out use of military force, and Goldberg made no specific mention of this. He said Britain might be asked to take "other appropriate steps as may prove necessary."

"We are immediately instituting a comprehensive embargo on the shipment of all arms and military equipment to Southern Rhodesia," Goldberg declared. He listed these additional measures:

—The withholding of the establishment of any quota for the importation of sugar from Rhodesia in 1966.

—The suspension of action on all applications for U.S. government loans and credit guarantees to Rhodesia and discouragement to potential American investors in that country.

—The discouragement of all American private travel to Rhodesia.

Passenger Jet Forced Down

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI)—An American Airlines Boeing 727 jet liner bound from Dallas to Chicago made an emergency landing at Capital Airport Friday. The control tower said the plane set down because of mechanical trouble.

Airport authorities said there were 62 passengers and a crew of six aboard.

The tower said the extent of the mechanical trouble "is not known right now." The plane landed at 4:15 p.m. CST, it said.

"He made a normal landing," the tower said. "Everything is all right."

Wreckage Of Plane Minutely Examined

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—The charred wreckage of a United Air Lines jetliner, which became a flaming tomb for 40 passengers, was minutely examined Friday as investigators sought the cause of the third Boeing 727 crash in as many months.

Fifty passengers and crew members — who fought their way out emergency windows and doors as flames swept over the plane — survived the crash.

Civil Aeronautics Board investigators poked through the rubble, all that remained of a multi-million dollar jet that burst into a ball of flame Thursday night as it touched down at the Salt Lake Municipal Airport.

The 72-ton jetliner left a trail of skid marks which showed the landing occurred about 350 yards short of the normal touchdown, but CAB investigators declined to speculate on the fact after a day-long inspection.

"We have issued no statement on the cause of the crash," said CAB spokesman Edward E. Slattery Jr. "No statement is expected until about a week."

The crash was the third in 87 days by one of the sleek, medium-range airliners powered by three jet engines at the rear of the plane.

In all three crashes, the 727 was making a landing approach on a flight that originated in New York City.

The first crash occurred Aug. 16 when a United jet plunged without warning into Lake Michigan while on a routine approach to Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. Thirty persons were killed.

A lifeguard walking the lake's shore said a "tremendous fireball" flared against the night sky at the time the plane dipped off radar screens. Other Chicago residents saw a flash out in the lake.

Earlier this week, an American Airlines 727 smashed into a hill while approaching the Greater Cincinnati Airport. Fifty-eight of the 62 persons aboard were killed.

Bandits Sought After Robbery Of Area Store

RUSTON (Special) — Jiffy Mart, located at the intersection of North Trenton and Interstate - 20 here, was robbed at approximately 10 p.m. Friday by two unidentified Negroes, according to Ruston police.

Police said the pair escaped with about $150 in cash and coins which they dropped later when cornered at an Arcadia intersection. The pair had abandoned their car in Arcadia late Friday night and were being sought in a wooded area by police and bloodhounds.

Roadblocks were set up immediately after the robbery was reported and Lincoln Parish law enforcement officials were conducting a search for the pair.

The store owner told officers the two were armed with either .22 or .25 calibre automatic pistols.

Communism Big Threat In Africa

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson declared Friday Britain must solve the Rhodesian problem quickly to stop adventurous Communist nations from seizing a foothold in Africa. The United States gave prompt backing to Britain before the U.N. Security Council.

Wilson told the House of Commons that Prime Minister Ian Smith and his white Rhodesian cabinet are using "their first taste of power to erect all the sickening apparatus of a police state."

The House heard Atty. Gen. Elwyn Jones warn Smith and his ministers that their defiance of Britain's authority is treason.

Although Britain has abolished the death penalty for murder, an act of 1814 providing death for treason still is on the books. Whether such punishment would be contemplated for Smith and his associates if and when Britain reasserts its authority in Rhodesia was a subject none in authority wanted to discuss.

Wilson told an attentive House the Communists can be discouraged only by a bill before them that demonstrates "we are not bluffing" in cracking down on Rhodesia, which declared its independence Thursday.

The House gave first reading to the measure, which imposes sanctions, cuts off financial and economic ties, abrogates Rhodesian passports and in other ways isolates Smith's regime.

Wilson emphasized that Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, now at the United Nations, has a difficult job but his assignment is to assure U.N. members that Britain intends to "restore Rhodesia to the rule of law."

Stewart told the U.N. Security Council Britain will not use force to restore Rhodesia to British control, but asked support for economic reprisals. This support came quickly from the United States. U.N. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg announced the United States had barred imports of Rhodesian sugar, suspended application for credits and loans, embargoed arms shipments to Rhodesia, and had taken other measures.

In Zambia, formerly Northern Rhodesia, troops were sped to the border with Rhodesia after President Kenneth Kaunda's state of emergency proclamation. Rhodesian troops were reported dug in on their side of the border. The Zambian army is reported to number 2,500 men; Rhodesia's 10,000.

Britain's quarrel with Rhodesia is over the status of the 3.8 million Africans in a country ruled by 225,000 whites. Britain sought assurances in long negotiations that Rhodesia provide eventually for African rule if independence was granted, but Smith's government refused.

The legislation sought by Wilson to bring Smith's regime to its knees probably will be adopted Monday.

Wilson warned that unless Britain managed this and re-established a Rhodesian government loyal to the crown without the need for using force, Communist nations might use the U.N. banner as an excuse to enter the African door.

Wilson apparently was referring to the prospect of a U.N. force being created on the urging of the aroused African nations which conceivably could include Soviet troops.

"We must show that we ourselves mean business," Wilson declared. "Unless members of Parliament are prepared to face that, they may invite a prospect, which is one which I do not find comforting, of the Red army in blue berets" — U.N. uniform.

Authority On Ocean Will Speak Here

An authority on biological productivity of the ocean will address the South Arkansas Section of the American Chemical Society here Wednesday night.

Dr. Sayed Z. El-Sayed, project supervisor for a study of ocean life in the Antarctic, will discuss his group's findings in an illustrated talk to be given at the Admiral Benbow Inn.

ACS Section Chairman David S. Byrd said his organization's monthly meeting will be with a dinner at 7 p.m. The address follows at 8.

The visiting speaker, a native of Alexandria, Egypt, is a member of the Texas A&M University oceanography and meteorology faculty.

He received his B.S. degree in zoology and geology at the University of Alexandria in 1949, and the master's degree in oceanography from the same institution in 1951.

He came to America for graduate study at a Fulbright Scholar in 1952, first attending the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, and later the College of Fisheries at the University of Washington, where he was awarded the Ph.D. degree in 1959.

In addition to participating in the 1962 expedition to Antarctic waters, he has served as project supervisor for productivity studies of the Gulf of Mexico off Panama City, Fla.

He is the author of numerous scientific papers, including eight on various aspects of the Antarctic investigation. Four of these were published, or are in the process of being published, this year.

State Industry Mission Slates Argentine Meet

Word received Friday from Sao Paulo, Brazil, indicated the industry - seeking mission headed by Louisiana Governor John J. McKeithen will meet Monday with President Arturo Illia of Argentina for a 1½ - hour conference.

Tuesday, the group, still in Buenos Aires, the Argentine capital, will visit the foreign office and Department of Commerce, to be followed Thursday by a visit to the governor of the Brazilian state of Sao Paulo.

Friday and Saturday of next week, the governor and his party, including James W. Moore and John Sherrouse of Monroe, will be in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil for trade relations meetings with Brazilian officials.

The group will return to the United States the following Sunday, Nov. 21.

President of International House, T. Sterling Dunn, at New Orleans Friday said that the governor's presence in Buenos Aires has lent extraordinary prestige to the mission visit and "we feel much has been done to strengthen relations between Argentina and the United States.

Dunn went on to say that "so far we have accomplished our purpose and made our state and the ports of Louisiana better known to leaders and business firms in Bogota and Lima. In Buenos Airies we have discussed at length ways in which trade between Louisiana and Argentina might be increased."

Smith Orders Sir Gibbs Out Of Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith ordered British Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs to get out of Government House Friday. Sir Humphrey, the resident representative of Queen Elizabeth II, has been designated by Britain as the only legal authority remaining here.

Smith, ignoring an order from London ousting him, issued a warning to the Rhodesian black African majority that "the police and army are ready to deal with any people who cause trouble."

He also brushed aside British Prime Minister Harold Wilson's charge that he was guilty of treason in declaring Rhodesia independent and for his subsequent acts.

The United States, supporting Britain's policy of isolating this colony which declared its independence unilaterally Thursday, hauled down the Stars and Stripes at the U.S. information Service library, and American personnel prepared to leave by the weekend.

Violence was reported Thursday night in the African township at Bulawayo, 230 miles southwest of Salisbury. African gangs roamed the streets, gasoline bombs were thrown, and buildings and houses were said to have been damaged.

A government statement, however, insisted all was quiet in Rhodesia.

There are 3.8 million Africans in Rhodesia, whose destinies are in the hands of 225,000 white Rhodesians.

Smith's message told the Africans: "You must all continue to do your work. You have nothing to fear."

Smith explained that his statement concerning Gibbs was made "in the light of (Prime Minster) Wilson's alleged statement in the British Parliament that the only legal government in Rhodesia is Sir Humphrey Gibbs."

"Sir Humphrey Gibbs has been advised that in view of the new constitution which has been given to the people of Rhodesia by the de fact government in contro, he no longer has any executive powers in Rhodesia."

Smith's statement said:

"I wish to make it clear that there is no power that the British government has which enables it to govern Rhodesia. Therefore, any powers which Mr. Wilson attributes to Sir Humphrey are fictitious."

Stringent censorship made it difficult to get an accurate picture of sentiment around Rhodesia to the declaration of independence and world reaction to it.

The government - controlled radio and television gave little news of it and the Rhodesia Herald appeared with censored black spaces.

Silt-Coated Barge Lifted From River

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A silt-coated barge and its deadly cargo of chlorine were lifted from the muddy bottom of the Mississippi River Friday, ending a tense situation begun by Hurricane Betsy.

The million-dollar salvage operation, two months in the planning, went off without a hitch.

Two hours were needed to raise the rusty barge from 60 feet beneath the surface. Another hour was required to inspect it to make certain the four white tanks containing 602 tons of chlorine were not damaged.

Then the capital city area's 300,000 residents were told the threat that had been with them constantly since the barge capsized and sank during the hurricane was ended. The thousands who evacuated their area began streaming home.

The barge had taken shelter here from the hurricane Sept. 9-10. It was one of scores sent to the bottom.

President Johnson, warning that there was enough chlorine aboard to kill 40,000 people if released in a concentrated area, ordered an all-out effort to find and raise the barge.

More than 300 divers, sailors and other military personnel fought the tricky river currents to locate the barge. It was just offshore from the Louisiana State University campus. The hunt took only days, but preparations for the lift took nearly two months.

A derrick — tall as a 20-story building — was set up at the site and divers worked for days fastening steel cables around the barge. They were hampered by the currents, sticky mud and darkness 60 feet beneath the surface.

More than 100,000 gas masks were rushed to Baton Rouge, but never were issued to the public.

Two Army trains from Atlanta evacuated more than 700 sick and infirm to Pineville in central Louisiana.

Two of the patients died en route from what officials described as heart conditions.

All persons living within a five-mile radius of the barge were urged to leave home during the lift operation. Thousands did.

Schools, stores and offices were closed, leaving the Baton Rouge business district nearly deserted.

More than 600 national guardsmen in 300 trucks stood by to evacuate remaining persons should a leak develop in the chlorine tanks.

Two giant booms from the derrick pulled the barge loose. The barge was brought to the surface, where the silt was washed away.

Scientists checked the tanks for leaks while engineers pumped out the water to float the barge.

The barge will be floated downriver to a chemical plant, where plans will be made for disposing of the cargo.

The bill for the salvage operation, expected to exceed a million dollars, will be sent to the Office of Emergency Planning.

Johnson Resumes Busy Work Day

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — After five weeks of recuperation, President Johnson appears to have resumed a full, typically busy work schedule.

Thursday "probably was his busiest" since his gall bladder operation of Oct. 8, a White House spokesman said.

Up early again Friday, Johnson tackled a wide variety of government business.

He found time also for a long walk in beautiful weather at the LBJ Ranch and to remember two old friends, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry F. Byrd, who resigned Thursday as Virginia's senior senator.

A phone conversation with Byrd, in which Mrs. Johnson joined, was described by assistant presidential press secretary Joseph Laitin as "sentimental and light-hearted." Johnson also sent Byrd a telegram in which he told the Virginian he was "one of the authentic giants of that body (Senate) which we cared so much about."

Johnson also sent a personal note to Eisenhower, who is in a hospital at Ft. Gordon, Ga., following a heart attack. The President kept in touch with Eisenhower's condition by having his own personal physician, Dr. George G. Burkley, phone Eisenhower's doctors.

Laitin said Johnson spent considerable time Friday on the State of the Union message he will deliver to Congress in January, although the actual drafting of the document has not yet started. Friday's research involved points he wants to emphasize in the message, Laitin said.

Johnson's other Friday activities, as relayed to newsmen by Laitin, included some work on the next budget, and a review of papers dealing with decisions he must make on the closing of obsolete and surplus military installations, food shipments to various countries, loans under the Alliance for Progress and economic activity.

Laitin said military installations to be closed or curtailed could affect scores of congressional districts in the coming months. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamar, among top-level advisers who conferred with Johnson for six hours Thursday, estimated this would result in a saving of $500 million a year.

The Medal of Honor Society received Johnson's thanks Friday for his support of U.S. policy in Viet Nam. Replying to a Nov. 2 letter from Thomas J. Kelly of New York, president of the society, Johnson wrote:

"No Americans have a better right to speak up in times of danger and difficulty and your voices command the respect of your countrymen and the gratitude of your President."

Sen. Long Facing Crucial Decision

WASHINGTON (Special) — Between now and January, Sen. Russell B. Long (D) La. will face one of the most important decisions since he filed for his first Senate race in 1948.

The Louisianan, who has just passed his 47th birthday, will have to decide whether to continue as Senate Democratic Whip in addition to holding his new prestige - packed post as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

If his own inclinations are a reliable guide, chances are he will continue to fill both roles. This would be an unusual feat, because either job is a full-time operation in addition to a Senator's regular duties. The only person in recent history to have done it is the former Majority Leader who became President, Lyndon B. Johnson.

Johnson departed from normal Senate practice during the later years of the Eisenhower administration when he created the Aeronautics and Space Sciences Committee and became chairman. Normally, the Majority Leader and the Whip of the party controlling the Senate do not actively head major committees.

One reason is that the posts of Majority Leader and Whip are jobs for active, vigorous men. They must have enough Senate experience to understand the complexities of parliamentary action but still be youthful enough to bear the strain of managing legislation and attending an endless round of conferences.

Under the seniority system, committee chairmanships are acquired strictly on length of Senate service. It is not often that anyone becomes chairman of a major committee before he is in his late fifties.

Long is a nearly unique case because he was elected the day before his 30th birthday. He now has 17 years seniority at an age when most politicians first begin to think about running for Senate.

Whether to hold on to the Whip post next year is the kind of question that is decided by conversations among the top Senate Democrats. In the next two months, Long will be discussing it with such men as Majority Leaders Mike Mansfield (D) Mont., and Sen. Richard Russell (D) Ga., the Senate's elder statesman.

In effect, Long has been holding both jobs since he was elected Whip in a three - way race last January. Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D) Va., whose resignation Thursday opened the way to the Finance Committee chairmanship, quietly but unshakeably disagreed with almost every important administration tax and welfare bill that came before the committee. It fell to Long to jockey the administration bills through the committee and manage them on the Senate floor.

His handling of the 1964 Tax Reduction Bill earned considerable respect from his older colleagues and undoubtedly helped in his campaign for the Whip job. This year, he varried the Medicare Bill through the Senate after losing a fight in committee to require wealthy beneficiaries to pay a larger share of certain medical costs.

Interviewed a year ago, just before his election as Whip, Long said he was not sure which job he would choose if the issue arose. When Byrd resigned, however, he has no hesitation in deciding that he would hold the committee reins regardless of what happened to the Whip job.

The chairman of the Finance Committee controls all measures dealing with taxes, a field that includes not only Internal Revenue but also Social Security (financed through a payroll tax) and — of special interest to Louisiana—Sugar Legislation (which involves a kind of tariff on sugar imports).

Although Byrd was reluctant to use it, the chairmanship confers great power on its occupant. Every Senator, at some time or another, seeks tax revisions or amendments affecting his constitutents.

Another reason Long would not vacate the Finance Chairmanship is the fact that his absence would greatly weaken the strength of the Senate group fighting to preserve the 27.5 per cent depletion allowance for oil and gas producers.

Such disparate Senators as John J. Williams (R) Del., and Paul Douglas (D) Ill., have repeatedly tried to win committee approval of amendments cutting the depletion allowance to 20 per cent. Unsuccessful in committee, they have carried the fight to the Senate floor. Although always defeated, they have won increasing support.

Long also ranks fifth on the important Foreign Relations Committee and has headed a special Small Business Subcommittee that investigated dual distribution systems of some manufacturers and the retention of patents by research firms working under government contracts.

Long is also automatically a member of the joint committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, a panel consisting of top members of the Senate finance and House Ways and Means Committees. It consults with the Treasury Department periodically on tax questions that need congressional concensus but no special legislation.

With Long heading Finance and Sen. Allen J. Ellender, the chairman of the Agriculture Committee, Louisiana shares the distinction with Arkansas of being a state with two Senate chairmen.

GOP Leader Cancels Talk In Natchez

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford said Friday Ford has canceled a scheduled talk at a GOP luncheon Monday in Natchez, Miss., because it was definitely established that the meeting would be segregated.

The Michigan Republican will, however, keep two speaking engagements at the University of Mississippi Monday, his office said. The university was desegregated several years ago in a stormy episode that required use of troops to quell riots that resulted in two deaths.

Ford was on his way Friday to Los Angeles to speak at a meeting of the journalism professional society Sigma Delta Chi.

His office said he telegraphed GOP leaders in Natchez Friday "I deeply regret that circumstances as they have developed prevent me from attending the luncheon speaking engagement in Natchez Monday, Nov. 15."

The telegram continued: "I fully understand your situation and the availability of tickets as outlined to my office but I hope you will equally understand the reaction in many parts of the country."

An aide to Ford said the reference to availability of tickets meant that the Natchez meeting was segregated.

Ford also said in the telegram he considered it most unfortunate that the situation had developed as it did "because I am working day and night to help build a Republican party and a real two-party system in every state."

Negro leaders had wired Ford that there would be demonstrations if he spoke at a segregated meeting in Natchez where racial tensions have been running high.

Mississippi headquarters of the Republican party had announced earlier that Ford would not appear.

A state headquarters spokesman said only "I understand it was worked out by mutual agreement."

The official Republican statement said simply:

"Due to a continued boycott of Natchez merchants and tensions there as a result of race relations, it was felt that Ford's appearance at this time would not be in the party's best interests."

Rep. Prentiss Walker, R-Miss., will substitute as a speaker at the fund-raising luncheon sponsored by the Adams County Republican Women.

Jaycees Asking For Suggestions On New Projects

The Monroe Jaycees Friday went to the people for some grassroots suggestions on needed civic projects for the coming year.

Jaycee President Otis Derbonne issued the call for ideas from citizens as part of an annual survey conducted by the group on civic projects.

Derbonne said that suggestions should be mailed to James Norris, survey chairman, at 102 McNeal St., Monroe.

Ideas that have been made realities by the Jaycees include the bandstand at Forsythe Park, the Miss Louisiana pageant, recognition of local students for academic achievement and many others.

HARRY FLOOD BYRD SR., retiring U.S. Senator from Virginia, and his son — Harry F. Byrd Jr. — who has been named to succeed him, are shown in this recent photo. The junior Byrd, a Virginia state senator and newspaper executive, was appointed to succeed his father Friday by Gov. Albertis Harrison. The senior Byrd retired Thursday after serving 32 years in the Senate. (AP Wirephoto)

Younger Byrd More Flexible In Ideas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Appointment of Harry F. Byrd Jr. to succeed his father places another staunch but possibly more flexible conservative in the Senate to represent Virginia.

Accepting the appointment at his home in Winchester, Va., the younger Byrd pledged "dedicated allegiance to Virginia," adding that "I pledge to do all in my power to advance the best interests of our great nation."

Byrd, a state senator and newspaper publisher, is expected to be sworn in promptly to succeed his 78-year-old father who resigned Thursday because of ill health the seat he has held since 1933.

The younger Byrd, who will be 51 next month, will serve untill the next general election next November. Virginia liberal Democrats are expected to mount a strong attack on his expected bid for nomination in the July 12 primary.

In his acceptance statement and talks with associates, the new senator has made it clear he expects to follow the course his father set in becoming the principal voice in Congress for government economy.

The elder Byrd has tempered this through the years with steadfast support of military appropriations, giving his support to the foreign policy course charted by five presidents.

Whereas his father headed the powerful Senate Finance Committee, the younger Byrd will have to start at the bottom in committee assignments. Democrats ordinarily give new members at least one plum, so he might land a berth on the finance group.

The new senator's record in Virginia public office is one that parallels his father's in national office.

Young Byrd's proudest achievement as a state senator, a job he has held since 1947, was his sponsorship of the automatic tax reduction law under which income-tax payers got a reduction whenever tax receipts exceeded the legislature's spending program.

The law subsequently was repealed in a reorganization of the state tax structure.

Following in his father's footsteps, Byrd once led a successful fight in the State Legislature against a sales tax proposed by then Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr.

He fought a losing battle, as his father was doing in the Senate, to trim the state budget by $23 million.

The new senator joined his father in criticizing decisions of what the elder called "the Warren court." But while his father maintained "golden silence" in the 1960 presidential election, Harry Jr. voted for the late President John F. Kennedy.

The younger Byrd was described by his associates as being "a little more flexible" than his father in his approach to national problems.

Although the Byrd organization which the elder senator headed for years has tended recently to break into factions, it appears all of these agreed on the son as the appointee.

This could mean a united organization behind the new senator in his fight to turn back an expected liberal challenge to his nomination next year.

Four Concordia Men Arraigned

VIDALIA (Special) — Four Concordia Parish men were arraigned in Seventh District Court here Friday after being indicted earlier by a grand jury.

Marvin Henry Lungrin, of Ferriday, pleaded not guilty on a simple battery charge. Trial was set for Dec. 6.

The other three men, Frank Delaughter, Lee Draine and Ed Fuller, all of Ferriday, pleaded not guilty to charges of aggravated battery. Trial was set for Jan. 10.

In other court action, $231 in bonds were forfeited on a variety of charges, mostly traffic violations.

Court will reconvene Dec. 6.

Desegregation Plan Ordered For Madison

The Madison Parish School Board Friday was ordered by Judge Ben C. Dawkins Jr. to submit a plan for desegregation of parish schools effective in January.

Dawkins, presiding in U. S. Court for the Western District of Louisiana, said the speed and manner "to which the schools are desegregated shall be in accordance with the requirements set forth by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals."

The ruling came in a suit filed by Martin Williams in behalf of his daughter, Linda Williams, against George Kimbrough, president of the Madison Parish School Board, and M. A. Phillips, superintendent.

Representing the school board was District Attorney Thompson L. Clarke.

The board may submit one or more alternate plans and may designate the order of preference. All plans must be submitted within 10 days after which the counsel for the plaintiffs will have 10 days to respond.

Desegregation of teaching and administrative personnel will be deferred until the plan for desegregation of pupils has been accomplished or made substantial progress.

Second Crash Fatal For 3 Air Force Men

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Death, in a flaming jetliner, caught up Thursday night with three U.S. Air Force men who had survived an aerial collision only last Sunday.

But the luck of the Irish held for Lt. John J. Sullivan. He lived through both accidents, and he said Friday he'll go on flying.

Sullivan and the other three were among the crew of six aboard a C124 Globemaster transport which collided Sunday with a single-engine private Cessna plane in the air near Wagoner, Okla. The civilian plane crashed, killing all three occupants.

The Globemaster, with one engine knocked out, limped to a landing at Tulsa.

Lt. Sullivan, 4, a navigator, and three sergeants from the Globemaster crew were flying back to their squadron at Hill Air Force Base in Utah aboard the United Air Lines jetliner which burst into flames on landing at Salt Lake City Airport.

Of 90 persons aboard, 40 died, including all three of Sullivan's companions — T. Sgt. Robert Leo Burnis, 37, of Hill Air Force Base; M. Sgt. Fred L. Hart, 35, of Clearfield, Utah, and S. Sgt. German Edwin Caling, 34, of Everett, Wash.

Sullivan leaped out of the blazing airplane and escaped with severe burns.

The lieutenant, whose home is in Malden, Mass., and the sergeants all were members of the 28th Air Transport Squadron of the Military Air Transport Service.

In a telephone interview with the Boston Traveler, Sullivan said: "The first indication that anything might have been wrong with the airliner was when the pilot began to add power to all the engines as though trying to make a last-second adjustment in landing position."

The airliner hit the runway hard and, said Sullivan "Fire broke out on the right side of the tail and entered the cabin. The flames came inside creating intense heat and black smoke.

Turning Point Seen

In considering the defeat handed the Johnson administration in the struggle over Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, it is worthwhile bearing in mind that the conservative victory in the last Congress may be much greater than most people realize. In fact, the Senate's refusal to bow to the combined will of the White House and the union bosses may be a turning point in congressional submission.

The talk now is that the union bosses will insist on the Johnson administration resurrecting the repeal of the right-to-work provision next year, but the unions may think better of such a move. The Senate debate over Section 14(b), which permits state right-to-work laws, provided surprising insight into the attitude of the country toward the power of the unions.

The surprise was that there is no grassroots pressure whatsoever for adding one whit to the power already held by labor unions. On the contrary, there seems to be a very broad agreement that unions should not be allowed to dominate the job-getting and job-holding process in the nation. If the leadership of the AFL-CIO insists on another effort at repeal of 14(b), it may find itself involved in a complete reconsideration of American labor law at a time when the temper of the country is not especially favorable to unionization.

What the union bosses must realize, if they expect to retain any substantial respect of the public at large, is that they must devote their efforts to gaining members on merit, not by force. The American people have not yet been brow-beaten to the point where they will willingly submit to compulsion. The labor bosses can only expect efforts to gain members through compulsion to backfire on them and produce results opposite to what they desire.

For several years, a number of social commentators in the United States have suggested that the union movement in America is on the skids. They have pointed to the inability of the unions to win converts among white-collar employes of business and industry.

Unquestionably, the union movement has been hurt by revelations concerning hoodlum involvement. The highly publicized activities of James R. Hoffa of the Teamsters have done as much as anything to inform the American people as to what can go on in a union — how the union members themselves have no rights and become captives of autocratic union leaders. Thus a new generation of Americans apparently is disinclined to have their lives mixed up with the sort of funny business associated with many unions.

Another significant factor is the spread of education in the last generation. Americans who have gone through school since the 1940s are better informed than many of their elders. It is very difficult to sell to them the idea that "management" is the enemy of people holding jobs in business.

Private business is not interested in holding people down; it is active in job-training or job-improvement programs. A number of large companies give employes a chance to buy stock. The whole emphasis of American business today is on expanding opportunities and giving employes an accurate understanding of the stake they have in free enterprise. That the average blue-collar or white-collar working man or woman has such a stake is proved by the enormous increase in the size of the American middle-class — the biggest such class in the history of the world.

Perhaps the best way to describe the developing situation is to say that the unions may wither away through employe disinterest. Their only salvation is to concentrate on helping management improve productivity. But they have firmly rejected this bold new orientation. Instead, they try, through repeal of 14(b) and similar moves, to fasten an iron collar on working people. The union leaders don't seem to realize that they are the great reactionaries of our time.

Industry Moves South

Had Horace Greeley lived in the industrialized North today, he would advise his proverbial young man to go West — and South. It is in these two sections of the country where factory jobs and opportunity are beckoning, and have been for the past decade.

As more jobs open in the prairies and cotton fields, the East is losing jobs. Today there are 328,000 fewer factory jobs in the traditional industrial belt than there were 10 years ago. The shift is bringing a sharp impact on employment, and from all economic pointers, there won't be any letup for awhile.

There are many reasons for the migration. Manufacturers want to quit the East where wage costs are high and unions are strong. In the rural areas of the South and West, they find workers are willing to work a full day at lower wage scales. Too, chances of a strike are smaller than in highly unionized areas.

Resources such as power and water add to the South's attraction as a potential site for plants, whether a parent factory or branch. More and more industrialists want to get closer to markets. Consequently, they decentralize and cut transportation costs. Economic publications show branch factories springing up all over the country, often where rabbits ran wild only a few weeks before.

What all this amounts to is a reshaping of America's industrial center. For example, four states in the North and Northeast have been hit the hardest by the shift: New York, Michigan, Ohio, and Massachusetts. New York, for example, employs 186,000 fewer factory workers than it did 10 years ago. The apparel industry — one of New York's largest — has lost more than 80,000 jobs to Southern plants turning out clothing for the whole family.

Michigan has lost 95,000 factory jobs in the years 1955-65, and Ohio and Massachusetts have lost metal products, textile and leather industries to the South.

Some Southern states, for one reason or another, are doing better than others. The biggest factory booms have occurred in North Carolina and Florida. Other heavy gainers are South Carolina, Texas, and Tennessee. Louisiana, for all its resources, is low man on the economic totem pole — a fact which governors, past and present, keep trying to rectify.

There are many factors other than those mentioned above which dictate manufacturing wandering. Climate, political leadership, favorable laws, and good schools all are taken into consideration in factory moves.

An industrial survey taken recently shows that most of major heavy industry such as steel, autos, machinery, heavy electrical equipment, has stayed put in the East.

The 10-year shift from East to West and South shows no sign of letting up. It points up what many of us have suspected all along — that the South and prairie and mesquite lands of the West — so long in agricultural bondage — will pack the real progressive wallop of the future.

Military Defying Sukarno

Seeks $5 Million In U.S. Equipment

INDONESIA'S military leaders are going over President Sukarno's head and asking the U.S. to sell them $5 million in specialized communications equipment to bolster their drive against the Communists.

The decision is up to President Johnson. So far there is no indication what he will do.

The Defense Department favors the sale. In a memorandum to the President, it has recommended the urgently-sought communications equipment be sold directly to the Indonesian army.

The State Department is against that, on the ground the U.S. should deal only through the Indonesian government — meaning Sukarno.

In effect, this would bar the sale of the equipment to the Indonesian army. Sukarno already has bluntly made it known he does not want the anti-Communist army to obtain this U.S. equipment.

The Red-leaning Indonesian President did that in a tantrum-charged meeting with U.S. Ambassador Marshall Green several weeks ago.

Green informed Sukarno the U.S. was willing to resume economic aid. A tentative figure of $150 million was mentioned. Green also stated the U.S. was willing to authorize the sale of the military communications equipment — which has been pending since last summer.

Sukarno replied with an angry outburst in which he berated the U.S. and contemptuously rejected both proposals.

"We don't want your aid or anything else," he fumed. "We didn't ask for it, and we don't need it. If the Army wants communication equipment, it can get it from Russia."

When General Abdul Nasution, anti-Communist Defense Minister, was told of this rebuff, he immediately declared the Army was prepared to buy the equipment regardless of Sukarno. Nasution formally confirmed this in a written message to Green.

MYSTERIOUS SUBMARINES — While the Indonesian army is largely Soviet-equipped, its communications system was provided by the U.S.

The system was around 70 per cent complete when the U.S. cut off military aid several years ago following Sukarno's increasingly hostile attitude toward this country and close ties with Peiping. Some months ago the Army proposed buying $5 million of communications equipment to link its major installation with Army headquarters in Jakarta.

The State Department favored this. It also recommended to President Johnson that additional atomic fuel be supplied Indonesia for a research reactor the U.S. presented in 1961.

Nothing was done on either matter after a series of anti-U.S. demonstrations that resulted in the burning of U.S. Information Agency libraries in Jakarta and Surabaya. But Administration attitude has changed since the abortive communist coup in October and the Indonesian army's apparent determination to crush the Communists.

The agreement on the atomic reactor has been renewed for another three years. However, the desired additional atomic fuel has not been shipped because of Indonesia's failure so far to make the required inspection arrangement.

Under the new accord, the inspecting is to be done by the International Atomic Energy Agency — with reports to the U.S.

The Indonesian army is very anxious to get the additional communications equipment for its still-far-from-certain struggle with the Communists. General Nasution told Ambassador Green the equipment would greatly increase the mobility of his forces.

Green was also informed that several unidentified submarines — possible Russian or Chinese — have landed both weapons and personnel in Central Java, main Red stronghold.

"I SHALL RETURN" — General Wessin y Wessin, militant anti-Communist Dominican leader, is in forced exile in the U.S., but that is not keeping him from speaking his mind freely to his countrymen.

He did that in a resounding speech tape-recorded in Miami, smuggled into the Dominican Republic and broadcast over the Armed Forces radio station.

Wessin castigated bumbling Provisional President Garcia-Goday, assailed Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. delegate to the Organization of American States, and concluded, "Compatriots! I say farewell to you with the same phrase that General MacArthur used at Corregidor, 'I shall return'."

The plain-talking address was a sensation throughout the country. President Garcia-Godoy has banned further Wessin recordings. He is also trying to ascertain who was involved in staging the broadcast — so far without results.

The State Department has been asked by Garcia-Godoy to intensify the surveillance of Wessin to prevent his return. Also to assist in blocking him from sending more taped speeches.

Assurances have been given that Wessin will not be allowed to leave the U.S. Just what can be done about silencing his recorded talks is "under study."

In his broadcast, General Wessin claimed that Garcia-Godoy "has no backing from the people, the armed forces, the political parties or of commerce and industry." His only support, Wessin asserted, "is a small group of Communists and opportunists and by the delegate from the U.S., Mr. Bunker, who because of personal pride does not want to admit his complete failure in the solution of the Dominican crisis."

"WHEN THE United States government chose Garcia-Godoy to impose him as provisional President," continued Wessin, "it did not take into account that he lacked popular backing and this has caused the failure of the policy followed by the OAS and the U.S. negotiators in the Dominican Republic. Hector Garcia-Godoy is only a marionette whose strings are pulled by Juan Bosch and Bunker.

"As long as Bunker continues to back Garcia-Godoy against the will of 97 per cent of the Dominican people, the state of the crisis will go from bad to worse. On the democratic Dominicans and the armed forces rests the responsibility to end this situation and re-conquer the principle of authority, which will impede the repetition of a disastrous Cuba."

In unpublished sworn testimony to the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, Wessin named two members of the provisional government as Communists.

According to him, they are Attorney General Thomas Morel Cerda and Interior Minister Manuel Joaquin Castillo.

This charge was supported by another witness — a former rebel captain who defected and is now in the U.S. In sworn testimony at a closed-door committee session, he asserted that Garcia-Godoy's press secretary Franklin Dominguez, and assistant press secretary Marcio Veloz Maggiolo held similar positions under Colonel Francisco Caamano, former rebel commander.

This witness declared that Dominguez and Maggiolo are pro-Castro and were appointed by Garcia-Godoy over the vigorous protests of Dominican military leaders.

Pre-Teen-Agers Get Allowances

WHEN SHOULD YOU begin giving your child a regular allowance? How much should it be and how much should it rise as your child approaches the big-spending teens? What if your pre - teenager insists on throwing his money away on nonsense?

"Next to inquiries about school behavior problems," says Dr. Frances L. Ilg of the Gesell Institute of Child Development in New Haven, "the question of allowances is one which parents ask us about most frequently."

Today, the questions are more pertinent than ever before and more perplexing to parents — because the answers are changing almost by the day. Our cost of living and standard of living have climbed steadily — and this goes for pre-teens as well as for adults. The allowance Dad got when he was a boy is ancient history. We are living in an increasingly money-conscious society: schools the nation over have set up children's small businesses as well as savings and investment clubs. Multi-billion dollar businesses have been built on the children's market, for their independent spending power runs into billions of dollars a year and virtually every dime children get is immediately disposable income.

HERE, THEN, are key guidelines for pre - teens allowances drawn by the Savings and Loan Foundation in Washington, the Gesell Institute (and reflecting my own firsthand experience with Cris, when she was a pre-teen.)

Q.: When should you begin giving your child an allowance?

A.: As soon as the child understands what money is for— usually at four or five years of age.

Q.: How much should the allowance be?

A.: Start with 10 cents or 15 cents a week — and make sure you hand it over on the same day each week. Incidentally, nickels and pennies seem more wealth to a child than a single, thin dime.

Q.: What if he always spends the allowance on such foolishness as candy and ten-cent-store toys?

A.: This is natural and normal for a grade-school youngster and you shouldn't interfere. This is his "learning money."

Q.: What about savings?

A.: Unless your child by himself decides to save for a big-ticket item, don't press the issue until he is 12 or so. Before then, few children develop much financial foresight and they shouldn't be expected to.

New Yorkers Not Of Panic Breed

IT WAS THE ELDER M. Dumas, if memory serves, who remarked a century ago that the greatest of all insults is to praise a man for doing his duty. New Yorkers tasted of this ultimate insult Tuesday night, the night of the great blackout, when they won high praise for not going into a panic.

Panic? There never was any real risk of a panic. New Yorkers are not made that way. They are a tough breed unto themselves; and such are the perversities of this giddy and impossible city that a night of mad inconvenience by dawn became a time of insufferable glory.

It was almost 5:30 when the lights suddenly dimmed, flickered, and went out. By 6 o'clock, the rumor had swept midtown Manhattan that some massive sabotage was involved, possibly as a presage to invasion or The Bomb. You might have imagined that these rumors would have triggered bloody riot, especially at the subway stairs, with thousands rushing down to safety while other thousands rushed up to fresh air.

Nothing of the kind occurred. In their own way, New Yorkers are as fearless as frontiersmen. They are not afraid of Russians or of little green men either. Run 'em down with taxicabs! And if The Bomb were really on the way, so what? You can't live forever.

ACTUALLY, NO ONE placed any credence in the rumors of enemy sabotage, and for a very good reason: Ninety-nine per cent of the aggrieved New Yorkers leaped instantly to the conclusion that it was all the fault of Con Ed, and this conviction sustained them through the night. It is a truism that the New Yorker is most happy when he is most miserable. By 10 o'clock, the mood was a mood of joy unconfined.

No one can understand this feeling adequately unless he understands that New Yorkers were born to accept imposition. A cynical fate has decreed that nothing in this dizzy metropolis ever shall function as it should for long. In his cradle, the New Yorker learns that vast impersonal forces have forever conspired against him — traffic, and smog, and noise, and water supplies. He confidently expects to be plagued by horns, jackhammers , and torn-up streets. Yet the fates have not been wholly unkind: If they have cursed the typical New Yorker, like Tantalus, with a condition of perpetual torment, they also have blessed him with a gift of the critical tongue. This is a city of eight million Kerrs and Atkinsons, forever sitting on the aisle, snarling that the play is lousy and demanding that the playwright be hanged.

ALL OF THESE considerations came into the picture on Tuesday, for few of the vast and impersonal forces of oppression are more sturdily despised than Con Ed. This is cruelly unfair, to be sure, but the big town is not much on fairness. In point of fact, Consolidated Edison doubtless is an excellent company, and if its small crews of linemen seem to stay camped and tented in midtown intersections for whole seasons or years at a time, valid reasons surely explain the inconvenience. But Con Ed serves New York City, and New Yorkers lovingly loathe it.

So when the word spread, as the evening wore on, that it was all a technical failure, the bitter sweetness knew no bounds. Proper planning might have prevented the power outage, but this is the kind of planning a New Yorker never expects to see. Knuckleheads! Slobs! Jerks! The situation could not have been improved. In all the annals of dunderheaded stunts, nothing ever had touched it. Six States blacked out! Eight hundred thousand persons trapped in subways! Other thousands stuck in elevators! It was a new Series record.

As an occasion for unparalleled imprecation, the blackout thus achieved majestic proportions. It was better than Hurricane Hazel, which was God's will. It was better than the fate of the Mets, which was in part Casey Stengel's. Hundreds of stranded New Yorkers climbed thirty flights of stairs, happily cursing Con Ed at every landing, and groaning in jubilation at the ultimate afflictions of technology. In the great traditions of Manhattan, the people carried on.

NOW THERE WILL be investigations, studies, reports, recommendations. Committees will meet and large sums of money will be spent. It will be explained a hundred times that the fault was not within Con Ed; the fault lay somewhere else, on some other grid, in some other system. We shall be assured, ad infinitum, that the problem has been corrected and will not recur. Meanwhile, philosophers will remind us of all that we saw while the lights were out — the capacity of ingenious men to take crisis in his stride, the refusal of a sophisticated people to panic at rumors and darkness — and we shall be asked to meditate upon our society's dependence upon the soulless machine.

The reports and the philosophy will be mostly wasted on New Yorkers, who understand that neither reports nor metaphysics nor even Mr. Lindsay will remedy their ills. They enjoy the ill health that goes with damnation, and they would be truly crippled with nothing to gripe at. The Great Blackout of 1965 provided a binge of perfect despair. It was disaster without disaster, one prolonged occasion for heavenly misery. What New Yorker could ask for anything more?

'World Opinion' Ignored By LBJ

PRESIDENT JOHNSON has destroyed the moth-eaten foreign policy bugaboo about "world opinion" by following Republican recommendations and utilizing American strength to counter the aggressive thrusts of international communism.

Until recently this hard-to-define element played an almost dominating role in all American responses to repeated challenges from Moscow and Peking.

Throughout the Kennedy administration, for example, any use, however prudent, of American military power brought cries of anguish from the left wing. They argued that this firmness backed by strength would alienate progressive elements throughout Latin America, Asia and Africa and cause the so-called neutral nations to swing toward communism.

It was a natural follow-through on Mr. Kennedy's campaign claim that American prestige in the world had sunk to a new low as a result of the forthright foreign policy followed by President Eisenhower and John Foster Dulles.

When the Johnson administration, after months of delay, finally had to face up to realities of the Asian situation and start bombing North Viet Nam, the leftist concern over world opinion reached almost hysterical peaks.

LIBERAL WRITERS stated repeatedly that the United States had lost friends in every part of the world. They predicted all of Asia would not view our action in Viet Nam as a move against Communist aggression, but as a direct assault against Asians generally and seized on any two-bit leftist demonstrations in foreign countries to prove their point. They said neutral nations were justifiably blaming the United States for setting the stage for a nuclear war.

Every kind of argument was used, but the majority played heavily on the once workable argument that use of American power was alienating world opinion.

The administration's move in the Dominican Republic only heightened the outcry, with so-called experts warning that American prestige was set back years in Latin America. They literally wept over the possible estrangement of the so-called non-Communist left and swept aside all arguments that the American move was the only way to prevent the establishment of another Communist bastion in the Western Hemisphere.

BUT A DIFFERENT picture is emerging. The growing success of U.S. operations in Viet Nam is breeding a new attitude toward this country in the family of nations. It is not an attitude of condemnation, but of respect. There is growing sympathy and support for the American viewpoint in countries that officially condemned our action when it first began. At the same time there has been a marked decline in the prestige and accomplishments of the Red Chinese.

The British have always understood this facet of foreign policy. Even their leftist-leaning Labor government has never failed to use military strength when a situation demanded its use in Britain's own strategic interests. Her history is largely responsible, for her statesmen understand that respect for the British navy once gave the world nearly 100 years of peace. It undoubtedly is the reason the British have never wavered in their support of American objectives in the Viet Nam operation.

Appeals Court Orders Voter Rolls Opened

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court Friday ordered the Clarke County, Miss., voter rolls opened to easy registration by Negroes to make up for past discrimination.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the U.S. district court was clearly in error in its handling of the case. The decision was reversed and the case remanded.

Under the order, the registrar must, for five years, accept any applicant who:

Is a citizen and is or will be 21 years of age or older at the time of the next election.

By the time of the next election, "has or will have resided in the state two years and in the election district in which he intends to vote one year."

"Who is not disqualified by reason of conviction of a disqualifying crime, insanity or idiocy."

The ruling was on an appeal filed by the registrar, which the court said boiled down to "a plea that an injunction is not needed because the registrar is now in compliance with the law."

The court said Mrs. Evie Harris, who succeeded A. L. Ramsey as registrar since the legal fight started, apparently was complying with the law.

However, the ruling said the rights of Negro voters ought not "rest on the unpredictable continuance of Mrs. Harris in this trying office" or her successors' attitudes.

'Heart Attack' Is Dead Tissue Inside Muscle

NEW YORK (UPI) — What laymen call a "heart attack" is what doctors call a "myocardial infarction."

The myocardium is the muscle of the heart. An infarct is a region of dead tissue which results from an interference in the flow of blood.

A myocardial infarction then is dead tissue in the heart muscle. If it is small enough, it heals and the consequence is scar tissue.

Former President Eisenhower already had scar tissue in his heart muscle from his previous heart attack. The interference in blood supply to the heart muscle is necessarily temporary in persons who recovery. If it wasn't, they wouldn't.

"Coronary insufficiency" heralded Eisenhower's new heart attack. It gave him the chest pains which sent him to the hospital. The "insufficiency" is of blood supply and when it occurs and persist an infarction in the heart muscle is the likely result.

Conservative, Liberal Debate U. S. Policy At Tech

OPPONENTS IN liberal-conservative debate on U.S. foreign policy shaking hands before the "battle" begins. On the left is Fulton Lewis III, son of syndicated columnist Fulton Lewis Jr., who took the negative side in "American Foreign Policy: Success or Failure." Arguing the liberal viewpoint was Dr. James A. Burkhart, right, professor of political science at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo. The pair met in debate Friday at Louisiana Tech in a convocation sponsored by the college programs committee.

By FRANCES PHILLIPS
State Editor

RUSTON — Opposing liberal and conservative views on American foreign policy drew a full crowd at Louisiana Tech's Howard Auditorium Friday as Dr. James A. Burkhart and Fulton Lewis III debated their side of the issue.

An attentive audience of more than 1,400 Tech students, faculty members and Ruston residents heard the two men debate on "American Foreign Policy: "Success or Failure" at a special convocation sponsored by the college programs committee.

Dr. Burkhart, professor of political science at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., took the liberal affirmative side of the question. His opponent was Fulton Lewis III, national executive committeeman for the Young Republicans and son of News - Star columnist Fulton Lewis Jr.

Dr. Paul Pennington, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences at Louisiana Tech, was master of ceremonies for the formal debate.

Dr. Burkhart, speaking first on the program, termed foreign policy "the most significant issue before the American people." He began his preliminary remarks by "looking through the long telescope of history" and tracing the developments during and after World War II that led to the present foreign policy of the United States.

He listed certain key policies leading to the program as support of the United Nations, establishment of the Marshall Plan and Truman Doctrine, and a series of treaties that ringed the world in alliances.

"Maintaining national interest and at the same time reducing animosity and antagonism in the world" is the purpose of current U. S. foreign policy, he said.

Foreign policy is a "demanding commitment," he emphasized, requiring a nation to remain calm and to be willing to negotiate. He further illustrated his point by listing these assumptions: "That it is to the national interest to avoid World War III, that international crises will continue, that each crisis is unique and should be handled by using all weapons possible, and that foreign policy is based on deliberation, thoughtful action and intelligent use of power."

Lewis began his preliminary speech by stating that "liberal leadership has been marked by a constant repetition of tragic mistakes, a constant retreat for the cause of freedom and a long-range objective not consistant with American tradition.

The conservative, a fiery speaker, drew applause from the crowded auditorium when he said that "the only time in 25 years that the liberals have been right is when they have followed conservative policy."

Lewis defined the liberal viewpoint as a "containment policy," seeking to keep "things exactly as they are."

"If there is hope of moving the frontiers of freedom forward," he said, "it is with the conservatives."

Turning "to the record," he cited examples of what he called liberal failures in foreign policy. He listed the liberal faults as "naive trust of the communists, subsidizing the enemy, unilateral disarmament, and lack of a long - term policy of victory over communism."

Lewis drew applause and laughter from the audience several times, with remarks such as referring to Sen. William Fulbright of Arkansas as the "God of the far left."

Dr. Burkhart received his share of the applause, though, especially as he began his rebuttal with the statement, "My opponent is very articulate — that's where he's wrong."

The less emotional,speaker charged that Lewis had "confused a dream world with the world of harsh reality" in believing problems to be less complex than they really are. He said that U. S. foreign policy is "amazingly good," even though "we're not batting 1000."

"Looking at the total record," Dr. Burkhart said, "I think we're on the right course and it has paid off."

"The conservative program is the only program not based on wistful thinking," Lewis countered in his rebuttal. He referred to a statement by Dr. Burkhart that communism had been experiencing difficulties in Europe because of U. S. foreign aid, and stated, "the liberals consider American foreign policy a success because the adversary is having domestic problems. Isn't that wishing."

"I don't say we should bat 1000," he added. "I'd be happy with 10 per cent or five per cent. We now have a zero per cent average."

Referring to Dr. Burkhart's statement that the communists are suffering difficulties, Lewis declared that "the liberals have not taken advantage of the situation and have offered not one program, not one suggestion, where the cause of freedom can take one step forward."

During a lengthy question-and-answer following the debate, about 100 persons who stayed behind posed questions to the two authorities. Tech political science instructor Riley Baker served as moderator.

The lone agreement between the pair came after a foreign student raised a challenge that U. S. foreign policy was designed solely for the benefit of the United States. Both men stated that its purpose is to give each individual the right to help determine his own form of government.

Jaycees Here Will Be Hosts To Students

Members of the Monroe Jaycees will host foreign students attending Northeast Louisiana State College next week in their homes and at their regular weekly meeting.

On Sunday, the students will be luncheon guests in the homes of various Jaycee families. Following lunch, the visiting students will be taken on tours to various places of interest in the Twin Cities.

On Tuesday Night, the students will be honored guests of the Jaycee chapter at its regular weekly meeting at the Rendezvous at 7 p.m. Each guest will be given an opportunity to participate in the program in exchanging ideas and impressions of the countries involved. According to project chairman Roy Post, approximately nine students representing seven foreign countries are expected to participate in the program.

"Hosting Foreign Students" is one of the annual projects sponsored by the Jaycees for the purpose of promoting better international relations.

Supervisor Of Education Ends 3-Day Visit

Mrs. Ione Hill of Baton Rouge, Elementary Supervisor for the Louisiana State Department of Education, Friday ended a three - day visit in Ouachita Parish during which she inspected parish schools' reading programs.

Periodic supervisory visits are required of the school official in all parishes of the state. While here, she visited with the faculty of several schools in order to discuss with them their in - service programs in reading.

A program of particular interest, locally, Mrs. Hill said, was the pilot study being undertaken in order to experiment with more rapid reading habits. Curriculum film strips are used in teaching reading in grades one through six in the statewide project.

Another area of special interest for Mrs. Hill's investigation was the elementary school central library. "Your elementary school libraries here are excellent," she commented. "I was greatly impressed with the centralizing library system in your schools."

Official hosts of the supervisor's visit were Milton C. Hall, parish superintendent of schools, and J. M. Waldrop, elementary supervisor in the parish schools.

Nuclear Test Is Conducted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nuclear test of low yield — meaning equivalent to less than 20,000 tons of TNT — was conducted underground Friday at the Atomic Energy Commission Nevada test site, the commission announced.

It was the 21st announced weapons-related test of 1965.

There have also been one "Plowshare" test aimed at peaceful uses of nuclear energy, and one test detection experiment.

Chiropractors Court Decision To Be Appealed

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A federal court decision that chiropractors must be licensed by the State Board of Medical Examiners likely will be appealed to the Supreme Court, a chiropractic spokesman said Friday.

Dr. Harold C. Karas of Metairie said he felt certain the opinion of the three - judge court would be appealed but that the final determination would be made by attorneys for the Chiropractors Association of Louisiana. Dr. Karas is chairman of the board of the association.

In the meantime, he said, Louisiana's more than 200 chiropractors will continue to practice without benefit of a medical license from the state board. He said these chiropractors serve over 3,000 patients a day.

Dr. Joseph Sabatier of Baton Rouge, president - elect of the Louisiana State Medical Society, called Thursday for authorities to arrest chiripractors for practicing medicine without a license.

At issue in the long dispute is a state law that says persons practicing any of the healing arts must be licensed by the medical board. This board will license only persons with recognized medical degrees and who pass surgery tests administered by the board.

Later laws have exempted dentists, nurses and other categories from the board's supervision. Special boards were created to regulate these provisions.

"The medical profession states that chiropractors are not qualified to practice medicine," Dr. Karas said. "That is true . . . Chiropractic is not medicine.

"Actually, in approach and method of dealing with health, they are quite different."

The chiropractors brought suit eight years ago seeking to free themselves from regulation by the medical examiner board. They charged discrimination.

The three - judge court, in a ruling handed down in New Orleans last Tuesday, held that the law was constitutional as it applied to the chiropractors.

During the time the litigation has been in progress, authorities have made no effort to prosecute chiropractors on charges of practicing medicine without a license.

Dr. Karas said his organization sees "a definite need" for the profession to be regulated and controlled.

"We in the chiropractic profession are the first to admit that there are individuals calling themselves chiropractors in Louisiana who are unqualified to practice for one or several reasons," he said. "The only way to correct this situation is through regulatory legislation.

"If the medical profession is trying to protect the public, they will endorse legislation setting up a board of chiropractic examiners."

Dr. Karas said such boards now are operating in 47 states.

Polaris Rocket Star Watching Test Successful

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—An outmoded Polaris A-1 rocket streaked 460 miles into space Friday in a successful test of a new star watching guidance device that may steer future mobile missiles to pinpoint targets.

The five-year-old missile, a veteran of sea patrols on America's first five Polaris submarines, was launched at 5:28 p.m. EST from a land pad and put on a brilliant show for ground observers.

For about a minute, the missile left a straight, long trail of smoke brightly illuminated by the setting sun as its special star sensor tracked the north star. Then, near the end of powered flight, the missile swerved high over the Atlantic and set its sight on a second star.

Investigators Hope Study Discloses Blackout Origin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government and industry power experts expressed hope Friday that a detailed study next week of basic operating data of six companies and organizations may disclose the origin of last Tuesday's massive power failure in the Northeast.

As investigative sessions were recessed for the weekend, the six companies were asked to present their records so that a panel of experts can begin a study of them Monday morning.

Chairman Joseph C. Swidler of the Federal Power Commission, who is directing the sweeping inquiry ordered by President Johnson, said there would be no written report to the President over the weekend.

Asked whether a final report could be made next week, Swidler said "I don't have a target date. We will be in better shape to know after Monday or Tuesday."

Participants generally declined to discuss what is taking place behind the closed doors.

It was learned, however, that one theory that keeps popping up is that trouble originated in the upper New York State-Ontario, Canda, area where the Niagara power complex is the major power source of supply for the area that was affected.

It was explained that the "swing" of the power — the change from availability to deficit — as indicated by records was of such degree that major generating sources must have been involved.

But these same men noted also that this situation could have been a reaction caused by something that went wrong at some other point and affected facilities far removed from the point of origin.

Swidler continued to refrain from speculating that the exact cause will be found.

He said the planned study of the detailed records, including oscillograms, photographic records of current flow charts made automatically when something out of the ordinary triggers the recording mechanism, "may give us the story of exactly what did happen."

He said the records are expected to "let us know exactly what happened or what the limitations are" in trying to pin down the cause, considered a basic requirement before recommendations can be developed aimed at avoiding a recurrence.

Swidler said he personally will be working on the problem during the weekend and will have a small staff of commission and power company experts also at work.

Interviews were completed Friday with officials of Consolidated Edison Co. and Boston Edison Co. Other company officials will be questioned next week.

"We have heard the major part of the story of the largest systems and those which were involved in the failures," Swidler said. "We have heard spokesmen of the companies which had the largest loads. Con Ed — which operates in metropolitan New York — has given a fairly full picture of the crisis on their system and how they responded."

An investigation of the power failure also is under way in Canada. Premier John Robart Canada. Premier John Robarts said in Toronto that Ontario may sever its links with the North American hydroelectric grid if the inquiry shows that further blackouts may be in prospect.

"Nobody seems to be quite able to say it couldn't happen again," Robarts told newsmen.

He said the present international hookup evidently has meant cheaper power for Ontario consumers, but unless the threat of widespread blackouts is eliminated, "we will have to consider whether we shouldn't keep complete control within our own borders."

Missions Program Expected By Jews

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jews, who in the past 16 centuries have made little effort at proselyting, are thinking about a program of missions for the conversion to Judaism of "the unsynagogued and unchurched."

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations, with more than a million members, opens its 48th biennial general assembly in San Francisco today. On Tuesday afternoon, a resolution will be submitted calling for "the formulation of an open program of missionizing converts to Judaism." A spokesman said: "It is expected that this resolution will meet with considerable debate."

More than 3,000 delegates from 664 Reform Jewish temples in the United States and Canada are expected for the meeting which runs through Thursday.

For the first time there will be delegates from Hawaii and Alaska.

The theme of the conference is "A Faith for Our Times." A precedent was set in inviting official observers from the National Council of Churches, Protestant, and the National Catholic Welfare Conference. Also, for the first time, invitations went to the Orthodox and Conservative Jewish organizations.

A spokesman for the conference defined the three branches of Judaism: the Orthodox follows strictly the traditional law in the Shulchanach — the Jewish books of law. Conservatives recognize the need for some change and adjustment of the Judaic laws, but will change only within the framework of the law. Reform Judaism respects the tradition but, the spokesman said, "makes it relevant to each generation and is not bound strictly by that law, but interprets it according to its need."

It was in the Greco-Roman period, just before the birth of Christ and the subsequent emergence of Christianity, that Judaism made its greatest impact upon the ancient world. Many thousands in the areas ruled by Rome, including those high in the Roman aristocracy, converted to Judaism.

But in the year 315, Constantine I, emperor of Rome, prohibited Jews from engaging in conversion activities, and prospective converts from entering Judaism, under penalty of death. Subsequent centuries of persecution discouraged Jews from seeking proselytes.

Today, a conference spokesman explained, there are many in liberal Jewish circles "who are desirous of resuming the activity of the pre-Christian period, seeking new converts and thereby reaffirming the prophetic injunction of Israel's mission to the peoples of the earth."

Market Gets Second Straight Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — Advancing for the second straight session Friday, the stock market gave convincing evidence that it was not much upset about the quarrel between Government and producers over the aluminum price increase.

While representatives of business and industry protested the aluminum price rollback which followed the Government move to release aluminum from the strategic stockpile, aluminum stocks were subjected to further selling pressure.

Aluminum shares, however, cut their worst losses as the session wore on. Meanwhile, the investment community showed by its purchasing of color television stocks, other electronics, aerospace issues, office copying stocks, rails and coppers that there was no major breakdown in confidence.

Thus the ghost of Spring 1962 when the Kennedy Administration faced down the steel industry, forcing it to rescind a price boost, was laid quickly. A major stock market plunge worsened after the '62 confrontation.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 3.01 to 956.29.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which represents some 85 percent of the value of stock on the New York Stock Exchange, rose .44 to 92.55, topping the previous historic close of 92.51 made Oct. 27.

Volume swelled to 7.79 million shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 1.8 to 355.2 with industrials up 2.8, rails up 1.9 to a new high for the year and utilities off .5.

Of 1,389 issues traded, 684 rose and 457 fell. New highs for the year totaled 107 and new lows 20.

Reynolds Metals was the most active of the aluminum stocks and it sank ⅞ to 44¾. Alcoa, the biggest producer, was off ⅞ at 69½. Kaiser aluminum also dropped ⅞ while Olin Mathieson came out with a gain of ¾.

Twelve of the 15 most active stocks advanced, two declined and Commonwealth Oil was unchanged.

Magnavox was the most active stock, climbing 5⅜ to 80⅜ on 179,300 shares, following news that Xerox has agreed to handle the marketing, installation and field servicing of a facsimile device made by Magnavox. Xerox added ⅝.

Upset by the crash at Salt Lake City of a Boeing 727 jet of United Air Lines, Boeing was second most active, sinking 3 points to 116⅞. It was the third crash of a Boeing 727 in 87 days. United Air Lines fell 1½ to 95¾. Other airlines also were weak in sympathy. Eastern dropped 1½. Trans World Airlines lost 1⅜ even though it reported October domestic freight traffic was a record for the month and up 39 percent from a year ago.

The electronics and other "science" stocks once again dominated the list of market leaders. Among them, Transitron rose ⅞, Radio Corp. 2, Polaroid 4¾, Admiral 3¼ and Fairchild Camera 3⅜.

Among higher-Priced electronics, Texas Instruments ran up 13½ to 175½ and Motorola rose 9 to 158.

In addition, Allis-Chalmers advanced 2¼, Raytheon 1⅛, United Aircraft 2¾, General Dynamics 1¼, General Motors 2, Chrysler 1¼, American Telephone ½, du Pont 1, Control Data 1⅜, Kennecott 2½ and IBM 3½.

Strength in copper commodity futures was linked with the Rhodesian situation and was reflected in some but not all copper stocks.

Taft Broadcasting rose 2⅛ on reports it is negotiating to acquire a Hollywood producer of television cartoons.

Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 3.28 million shares. Westbury Fashions was active, and up ¾ at 3. National Video rose 2¼, Williams Brothers 7⅜ and Syntex 1⅞.

Corporate bonds were slightly lower. U.S. Treasury bonds rose.

Ground Broken For New School

Ground - breaking ceremonies were held Friday for the Monroe City School System's new $1,717,285 Wossman High School on the southside.

Located off the Winnsboro Road, Wossman is slated for occupancy by September 1966. The classroom building will be the first section completed by Terral Construction Company, with gym, auditorium and mechanical arts sections to follow.

Among those on hand for the ceremonies were School Board President W. S. Gannaway, Billy Hargiss, board member, City Supt. Van D Odom, Wossman Principal Paul J. Neal and Glenn Hammett, assistant principal.

No Women

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican daily L'Osservatore Romano reported in two articles this week that there is no chance of women becoming Roman Catholic priests. The paper said early saints regarded it heresy to hold that women should be allowed ordination and that "the traditional doctrine retains today all its validity and irreformability."

Grain Futures Close Session Mostly Higher

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly all contracts in the grain futures market maintained moderate to broad advances most of the time in fairly active transactions on the Board of Trade.

The only exception was wheat which came under rather steady profit cashing and perhaps some short selling shortly after the opening of the market when it became apparent demand still was thin and scattered.

Advances in soybeans ranged to well over a cent a bushel on support credited to further advances in prices of soybean oil and to commercial buying. However, soybean oil had lost a good deal of its gains in late trading on offerings described a profit cashing.

Commercial and speculative support firmed all corn deliveries.

Wheat closed ¼ cent a bushel higher to ⅝ lower, December $1.64-63¾; corn ½ to ⅞ higher, December $1.16⅝; oats ⅜ higher to ⅛ lower, December 69⅛ cents; rye ⅜ to ½ higher, December $1.21¾; soybeans ⅝ to 1¾ higher, November $2.52⅝-¾.

Eight Per Cent Climb Forecast For Farmers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department estimated Friday net farm income for 1965 would climb 8 per cent over 1964, and predicted another gain in 1966.

The department estimated income for the current year at about $14 billion — highest since 1952. This was about $1 billion over the 1964 total for the income.

And the department cited strong domestic and foreign demand, plus the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965, as supports for a predicted half billion dollar gain in 1966.

Net farm income is what is left after production expenses are paid.

Realized farm income in 1966, the department added would probably be just over $45 billion, compared with the record-high $44.25 billion now in sight for 1965. It said production figures might rise some in 1966, but probably not as much as in 1965.

It said very favorable prices for livestock and livestock products, led to the greatly improved 1965 farm income levels.

Improved government payments also was a major factor cited in the expected increase in 1965 income and predicted they would be even more significant in 1966.

Direct government payments to farmers this year are expected to be about $250 million higher than the $2.2 billion paid out in 1964. Next year, the government payments are expected to total about $1 billion more.

The two schools, meeting in the 17th renewal of their rivalry that dates back to 1911, tied for the first time, 0-0. In the center, Eugene Yates is about to catch another pass from McCain but it's broken up at the last moment by the Tiger safety man coming in from behind. Neville Tigers, Ouachita Lions Battle To 0-0 Tie

By BUTCH MUIR
World Sports Writer

A crowd of nearly 8,000 witnessed Ouachita and Neville struggle to a 0 - 0 deadlock in a high - pitched 1 - AAA battle at Lion Stadium Friday night.

It was the 17th renewal of Monroe's triple - A clubs and was the first time that a game had ended in a tie, dating back to 1911. It also ended a 14 game winning streak that the Tigers had run up over Ouachita.

As the horn sounded on the last play of the game both benches emptied onto the field.

That was all the spark that the tension - packed crowd needed as fans rushed out onto the middle of the field and began a free - for - all that lasted almost three minutes before police, coaches, and referees could restore order and return the teams to the dressing rooms.

The tie knocked Coach Mark Boatright's crew out of second place in 1 - AAA sending it to third with a 4 - 2- 1 record and 5 - 4 - 1 overall. Neville, in third before the game, fell to fourth with a 3 - 2 - 1 mark, 4-4-1 for the year.

As the district race now stands Woodlawn is in first with a 4-1-1 mark and Fair Park second with a 4-2 record. Both will be favored to win next week and finish in that order.

By any chance a winner will have to be decided, Neville will get the nod with 10 first downs to eight. Ouachita had one penetration to none for the Tigers.

Fred Amman led all rushers with 86 yards on 13 carries as Neville picked up 228 yards on the ground. The Lions ended with a net seven yards rushing although Don Bendily had 12 and Dickie McNair 10. Ouachita quarterback Ronnie McCain was hit for losses repeatedly and ended with a minus 19 yards on the ground.

In the airways, it was different. McCain hit on five of 17 passes for 113 yards while tailback Johnny Knighten, on option pass - or - run plays, tossed for 23 yards on one completion in two attempts. Neville failed to complete a pass, with Doug Cookston missing one and Brown one.

Ouachita had the deepest penetration by either team, reaching the seven yard line late in the first half. The Lions had moved from their own 48 to the seven in only six plays, with McCain tossing to wingback Dickie McNair for 39 yards on a third down play for the big gainer.

	Neville	Ouachita
First downs	10	8
Yards rushing	228	7
Yards passing	0	136
Passes (A-C)	2-0	19-7
Had intercepted	1	0
Punts-avg.	4-36.2	8-38.3
Fumbles-lost	1-1	1-1
Penalties-lost	6-51	4-60

But Neville stopped all the host's thoughts of pushing on in as tackle Murray Salinas pounced on a Knighten fumble on a third down play at the seven.

The Tigers, after taking the opening kickoff at their own 40, swiftly moved to the Lions 30 yard line in seven plays. Following bursts by fullback Keith Gunn, halfback Tim Allen and Cookston, the Tigers picked up three first downs before the game was two minutes old.

But the Lions defensive unit, the "Head Hunters," rose to the occasion and took over at the 21.

The Lions found Neville's defensive squad was sharp also and were forced to punt after three plays lost two yards. Punter R. J. Ladart got off a 47 yarder, down to the Tigers' 34.

On the first play from here, Allen swept right end for 16 yards and a personal foul penalty added on moved the ball back to Ouachita's 35. However, the Hunters were still tough, this time taking over at the Lion 27.

In the second half, Ouachita took to the air but completed only five of 13 passes and were forced to punt time after time. In fact, the Lions punted each time they had the ball in the second half of the game.

Ladart ended the night with a 38.3 yard average on eight boots, five in the last half, while Neville kicker Tom Brown had a 36.2 yard average on four kicks.

Late in the game, the Tigers threw their biggest scare into Ouachita.

After taking over on its own 20, Neville moved to the Ouachita 40 yard line, where on a first and 10 play, Lion guard Freddie Phillips recovered a Cookston fumble to end the threat. It had taken nine plays to cover the 40 yards.

With just :27 to go in the game, the Tigers hauled in a Lion punt at their own 32. Amman raced around right end for 35 yards on the first play to the Ouachita 33 yard line, and called time with :05 remaining.

On the next play, Allen scooted up the middle for two yards and with one second left on the clock, Brown's pass fell incomplete to end the game.

Next week, Ouachita ends its season with a road trip to Bossier City to face the Vikings of Airline, while Neville is in another grudge match, hosting West Monroe.

LSU, State Try To Get Back On Winning Road

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Louisiana State and Mississippi State, both crippled and both trying to rebound after slumps, clash here tonight in a battle of Southeastern Conference also-rans.

LSU will be out to snap a two-game losing streak — the longest since Charlie McClendon's been head coach — and salvage a possible bowl bid.

Mississippi State romped to four straight victories at the start of the season and then dropped four in a row.

The oddsmakers have installed LSU as a touchdown favorite but if you go by comparative scores against the two teams' common foes — Florida and Alabama — then Mississippi State comes out ahead.

Mississippi State upset Florida 18-13 and lost a 13-10 squeaker to the Crimson Tide. LSU lost to both teams, Florida 14-7 and Alabama 31-7.

McClendon says he isn't counting too heavily on the services of sophomore quarterback Nelson Stokley, who hurt his knee early in the Tigers 23-0 setback by Mississippi in Oct. 30 and reinjured it in warmups before the Alabama game last Saturday.

Maroon Coach Paul Davis reports that starting end Don Saget and star fullback Hoyle Granger will not be at fullspeed because of injuries. State also has other personnel sidelined because of injuries.

Davis will use senior quarterback Ashby Cook, a 170-pound scrambler from Montgomery, Ala., who has rewritten school records at Mississippi State.

McClendon has had seniors Pat Screen and Billy Ezell running his sputtering offense during drills this week. The LSU coach called two rare mid-week scrimmages to try to pep up his team.

Davis, on the other hand, kept his player in sweat togs all week long to avoid any more injuries.

Both teams have 1-3 conference marks. LSU is 5-3 and State 4-4 over-all.

All tickets for 68,000-seat Tiger stadium have been sold. Kickoff is at 8 p.m., CST.

Six U.S. Men, 1 Girl Advance In Tennis Play

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Six United States men and the lone American girl entered in the New South Wales tennis tournament advanced into the second round Friday without the loss of a set.

Clark Graebner of Beechwood, Ohio, mastered Lyle Randall of Australia, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0, while his wife, the former Carole Caldwell, advanced at the expense of Carol Cooper of Australia, 6-0, 6-0.

Arthur Ashe of Los Angeles, moved up without swinging a racket when Peter McCumstie of Australia failed to appear. Ashe, who became the first American ever to win the Queensland title last week, is among the favorites here.

The tourney was scheduled to start Thursday, but rain washed out much of the action.

Other U.S. victors were:

Cliff Richey of Dallas, Tex., defeated Ray Wilson of Australia, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3; erbert FitzGibbon of Garden City, N.Y., defeated Robert Layton of Australia, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0; Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif., defeated Max Senior of Australia, 6-4, 8-6, 6-3; and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill, spilled Ken Hiskins of Australia, 6,2, 6-0, 6-3.

George Blanda, 37, is playing his 16th season of pro football. He's with the Houston Oilers.

Continental Pro League To Draft January 13, 14

NEW YORK (AP) — A.B. Chandler, former baseball commissioner but now boss of the Continental Football League, said Friday his circuit would hold its second annual draft of college players in New York Jan. 13-14.

"That is well after the colleges have completed their seasons and even after the bowl games," he continued, "because we want to co-operate with the colleges individually and the NCAA to the fullest extent."

The American Football League will hold its draft, also in New York, on Saturday, Nov. 20, when some colleges still have regularly scheduled games to play. The National Football League has its draft scheduled for Nov. 27.

Generals Will Present Strong Defense For Tech

RUSTON (Special) — While the spotlight may be on the quarterbacks here tonight when Louisiana Tech and Southern Mississippi clash, the real scrap is likely to take place in the trenches where the unsung heroes hold forth.

The Generals have one of the best defenses, against both ground and air attack, in the nation. They have limited eight foes to an average of 91 yards rushing per game and 63 passing, and that includes teams like Auburn, Mississippi State, and Memphis State.

While the Bulldog defense has no such spectacular statistics, the offensive and defensive lines have been getting the job done. Tech has limited foes to an average of 137 yards rushing and 71 passing per game.

There will be two styles of quarterbacking Saturday night. Vic Purvis can pass if necessary but would rather run with the ball as evidenced by his 639 yards rushing and 405 yards passing. Tech's Billy Laird, while a capable runner, has thrown for 940 yards on 87 completions in 136 attempts.

In the ditch, Tech tackles such as James Boudreaux, Claude Carrigan, Dan Irby, and Bill McBunch, and Wayne Mathews, will be opposite John Melton, John Mangum, Arthur Gill, and Chuck Armond, all veterans who range from 230 to 260 pounds.

Doug Satcher, only a 215-pounder, rates as one of the top linebackers anywhere. Tech's Joe Peace, Bob McKinnon, Mike Mowad, and Wayne Gray are also big and tough. Center Ken Avery of Southern rates high, but so does Paul Clark for Tech.

Southern's secondary of Jim Barger, Mike McClellan, John Melton, and Tommy Youmans and Bill Devrow has been stingy in allowing pass completions. They have intercepted 19 aerials with Devrow with six and linebacker Tom Brennan with five.

While Laird and Purvis have been effective passing, Laird has permitted eight interceptions and Purvis seven during the campaign. Jim Stringer, Tommy Robertson, Larry Stephens and Tom Croft have turned in good efforts in the Tech secondary despite a lack of experience.

Southern closes the campaign against Tech while the Bulldogs resume GSC action against Northeast State here in their finale next weekend.

Cougars Attempt Upset Victory Against 'Cats

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The University of Houston tries to pull off its second upset in a row tonight when it takes on Kentucky, the nation's 10th ranked football team.
best performance of the year.

Houston, a two-touchdown underdog, upended Mississippi, Warren McVea turned in his best performance o fthe year. 17-3, last week when sophomore McVea, a sensation during his high school career and college freshman season, had been a disappointment to Houston fans during his previous varsity games. But last Saturday he scored touchdowns on pass and run plays that covered 80 and 84 yards to break Mississippi's back.

In all, McVea, caught six passes from quarterback Bo Burris for 201 yards in the Mississippi game.

Burris, also having one of his greatest days, completed nine of 19 passes for 284 yards to give him a season total of 50 completions in 125 attempts and 900 yards.

Kentucky, a prime bowl prospect with its 6-2 record, has some fancy backs of its own in Rick Norton, Rodger Bird and Larry Seiple.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman says Kentucky has "the finest athletes I have seen on any team this season."

Norton, who Kentucky Coach Charley Bradshaw calls the "best quarterback in the country," has passed for 1,450 yards this season and a career total of 4,141 yards.

Bird scored four times last week in Kentucky's 34-0 victory over Vanderbilt.

Houston, off to a bad start, has won its last two games. The Cougars beat Chattanooga 40-7 prior to defeating Mississippi to give them a 3-5 record.

A crowd of 35,000 is expected in the domed stadium. It will be Houston's last home game of the season and Kentucky's first visit here since the Wildcats defeated Rice in 1953.

Brothers Race To Wheel Mark On Salt Flats

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (AP) — The Summers brothers overcame wheel bearing difficulties and sprinkling rain today to race to a world land speed record for wheel drive vehicles.

Bob and Bill Summers of Ontario, Calif., drove their needle-like, 32-foot long Goldenrod to a two-way average of 409.277 miles an hour.

Their 2,400 horsepower, four-engine racer knocked off the old mark of 403.1 m.p.h. set by Donald Campbell of England last year.

"It handled just beautifully," Bob said after the record runs. "We went out at 9 and had the record by 10:20 a.m."

He said there was no recurrence of the wheel bearing problem that caused them to interrupt their attempts Thursday.

The Sweetness Of Perfection

How sweet, perfection.

The absolute picture of satisfaction? It has to be knowing that you are the best, knowing that you are unbeaten and possibly unbeatable, knowing that you play for the Arkansas Razorbacks.

Ho, hum another Saturday is here, time for another triumph. Who shall it be today, says king-kong Frankie Broyles who rules the wild Ozarks with an all-conquering hand.

Let's take on Michigan State or Nebraska or Notre Dame, no doubt is the cry throughout Hogland. But, alas, no such luck. It's only little SMU that is the foe for today.

Will it be a contest? Don't make jokes.

If you happen to be a betting man, which most are — especially those who say they aren't — your money (or match sticks) seems extremely safe with the Razorbacks, and for good reasons.

Broyles has done, and is finally receiving recognition for, the perfect coaching job at Arkansas. We say this not from strickly a "teaching" standpoint either, because this is not even the most important phase of the position in our opinion.

Even more important than his fundamental coaching methods of the game, Broyles had guided Arkansas to the top of the collegiate football world with his great personality and tremendous organizational system.

By making his boys "want to" possibly more than anybody else in America, Broyles has made them realize the importance of fundamentals and has made them acquire an instinct, which appears to be born in them but isn't, for doing the right thing.

Arkansas simply hasn't made any mistakes this year which have been costly. Not many other folks can say this. They have lost only six fumbles all year and the same number of passes by interception. In eight games, 480 minutes of football, this is truly astonishing.

But even if Arkansas did make errors, it would still have an edge over most anybody it plays. The Hogs can beat a team more ways than any club in the nation.

They can run inside with Burnett, outside with Burnett and Jones and Lindsey and Brittenum, pass with Brittenum, receive with Crockett and others, and play as good defensively as they need too. It's quite a machine.

Like we say it seems impossible to beat them. But if anybody on their schedule can accomplish the feat it should be SMU. True, the Mustangs' 4 - 2- 1 record seems pitifully poor alongside the 8-0 mark of Arkansas.

Nevertheless, SMU has several things going for it, not the least of which is the fact that the Mustangs are on the threshold of another era to rival the Doak Walker days when football was king in Dallas.

SMU (and Dallas) is hungry for winning football, and it is almost there for the first time since the late 1940's.

However, even more important than desire and spirit in this case is the knowledge that SMU has more speed than any club Arkansas has played this year. And this does not mean John Roderick, the SWC sprint champ, alone but rather tremendous overall team speed.

Southwest conference coaches generally agree that SMU comes nearer than any other team to having the personnel which Arkansas has.

And we shouldn't forget that SMU's coach is a former Razorback assistant coach, Hayden Fry, who tutored the last victory over a Frank Broyles team. That was two seasons ago when SMU turned the trick 14-7 in Dallas.

Also not to be forgotten is last year's contest when Arkansas humiliated the Ponies, 44-0. This sometimes tends to be good physcological material for the losing coach (Fry) the next time around.

So who's to win it? Well, there's not doubt here that it would take a nut to go with SMU — so glance down below for our pick.

Grand Day For The Dud

To relate what kind of a day Super Dud had last week we need only mention his selection of Houston over Ole Miss. A real nut of a pick, but the Dud has been getting his jollies about kidding all those who laughed loudest last week.

The totals last week read 25 right, six wrong for an .806 average. Coupled with our other totals so far that gives us 171 correct, 25 wrong, six ties for a .718 seasonal mark.

Take a look at this week's guesses:

GULF STATES CONFERENCE: Southern Mississippi 14, La. Tech 10 — It's hard to go against Bulldogs in Ruston, but Southern's defense proves to be too much. McNeese 21, Southeastern 13 — Cowboys have man with the golden touch in Merlin Walet, and that's the difference. Southwestern 10, Northwestern 7 — Demons put up a good battle but USL has taste of a GSC title in its mouth.

SOUTHEASTERN CONFERENCE: LSU 22, Mississippi State 14 — We seem to be spinning our wheels with the Tigers, but this week they've got somebody their own caliber and prove it convincingly. Florida 20, Tulane 7 — Greenies not embarrassed, just beaten by a superior team. Alabama 17, South Carolina 9 — Bryant has things going his way now and the Tide finish season without another loss. Georgia 13, Auburn 11 — We just can't see Tigers winning the SEC undefeated. Kentucky 21, Houston 18 — Cougars put up a real battle but pass defense can't hold Norton. Ole Miss 20, Tennessee 17 — This is SEC upset of the day. Game is being played in Tennessee and Vols ranked nationally with unbeaten record — but Rebs have their number. Vanderbilt 13, Miami 0 — Hurricanes looking ahead to next week's bout with Florida, although it won't help them this week or next.

SOUTHWEST CONFERENCE: SMU 14, Arkansas 10— Don't ask why, we even get nervous thinking about it. It's the long shot of the year and practically impossible (as explained above) but it makes great reading don't you think. Texas 21, TCU 14 — Frogs are a Longhorn nemis from way back, but Steers trying to prove something the rest of this season. Texas Tech 20, Baylor 19 — Closer than expected but Raiders stay in the saddle for upcoming crack at Hogs next week. Texas A&M 10, Rice 0 — Truly a game between losers. A 0-0 tie wouldn't be too surprising.

OTHERS: Nebraska 39, Oklahoma State 6; Michigan State 32, Indiana 14; Notre Dame 42, North Carolina 19; Duke 9, Wake Forest 7; Florida State 20, N. C. State 14; Illinois 30, Wisconsin 21; Iowa State 22, Kansas State 7; Memphis State 30, N. Texas State 20; Michigan 16, Northwestern 3; Missouri 7, Oklahoma 3; Ohio State 13, Iowa 0; Princeton 29, Yale 13; Southern Cal 40, Pittsburgh 12; Syracuse 14, W. Virginia 0; UCLA 24, Stanford 14; Colorado 10, Kansas 7; Cincinnati 31, S. Dakota 15; Miami, 0. 20, Dayton 17; Georgia Tech 22, Virginia 7.

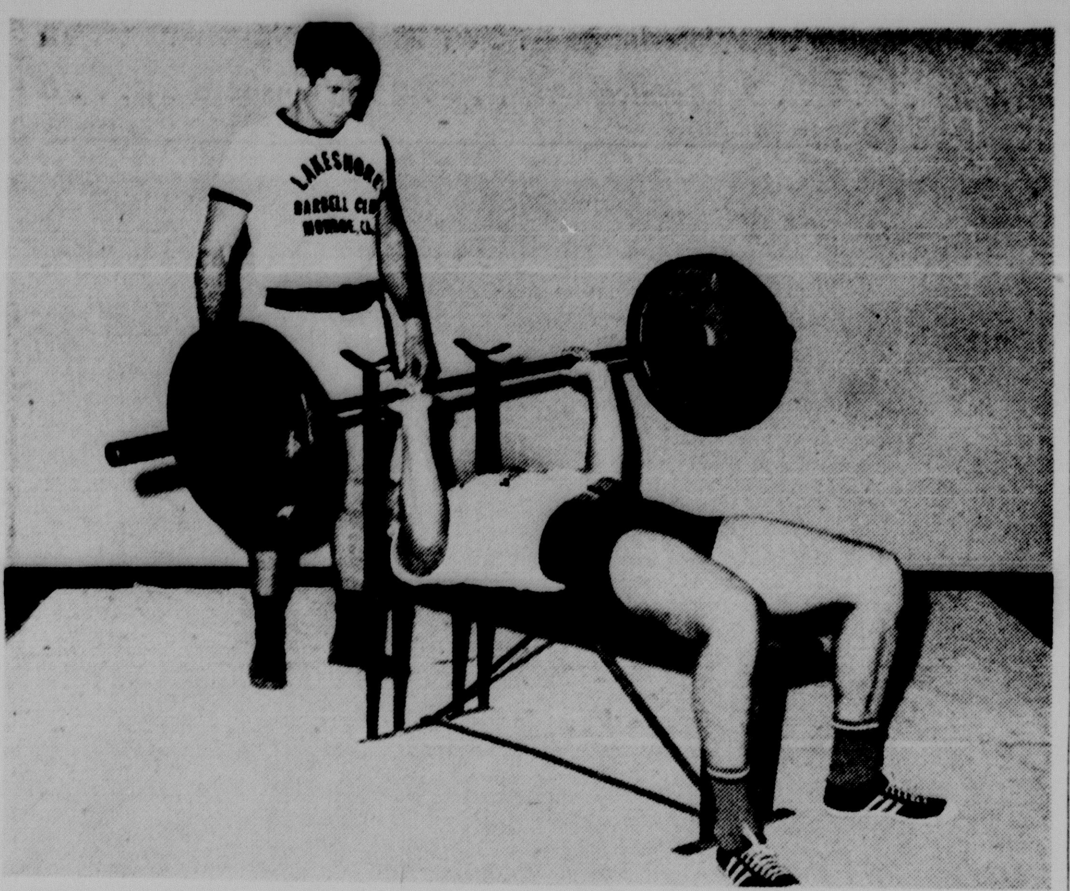
Unitas Returns

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Unitas ran through the entire practice session Friday with the Baltimore Colts, marking his first full workout with the team since being sidelined Sunday by a back injury.

His performance indicated that, barring complications, he will start Sunday in Minnesota against the Vikings as the Colts try to retain their one-game lead in the Western Conference of the National Football League.

Coach Don Shula said it was still too early to tell whether Unitas will be ready for heavy duty at quarterback.



EDWIN DAVIS completes a bench press as Bob Cain stands by to assist. The two will be in action today at the YMCA on Glenmar for the Ouachita Parish Power meet. Contestants will weigh in at 1 p.m. and lifting will begin at 2 p.m. Twenty-three entries have been received with three trophies to be awarded in each of seven divisions.

Milwaukee Still Deserves Consideration Says Frick

NEW YORK (AP) — Ford Frick said Wednesday that Milwaukee should be given serious consideration in major league baseball's next expansion move but defended a club owner's right to shift a franchise "where it appears a city will not support big league baseball."

The retiring baseball commissioner was questioned in connection with Milwaukee County's suit against the Braves, the National League and nine other league teams. The county seeks to prevent the Braves from opening in Atlanta, Ga., next season unless Milwaukee gets another major league team. The county charges the move to Atlanta is in violation of anti-trust laws.

"An owner has a responsibility to himself, his partners and his stockholders," Frick said. "He has no responsibility to lose money or to stay where he can't get by or where he appears th ecity is not going to support big league baseball.

"I've always thought that Milwaukee is a good baseball town. For the first few years attendance was very good. I have no reason now to think that Milwaukee does not qualify as a major league city."

The Braves moved from Boston in Milwaukee in 1953 and attracted big crowds for several years. But attendance fell off in recent season, and the club owners acted to shift the team to Atlanta for the 1965 season.

However, they were blocked by court action and ordered to honor their contract with Milwaukee County. It expires next Dec. 31. The Braves already have moved their headquarters to Atlanta.

The 70-year-old Frick, who is retiring this year, testified that he had no part in the decision to move the Braves' franchise.

"I have no authority in franchise matters," he said. "That is a league matter. The final judgment is made by the clubs."

Under questioning by Steven E. Keane, special counsel for Milwaukee County, Frick said that when the Braves' owners told them of their intent to move, "I advised them to consider the seriousness of such a move—just as I told Charles O. Finley in 1964 when he wanted to move the Athletics from Kansas City."

Casey Explains Job On Mets Scout Staff

NEW YORK (AP) — "I think we may take in the World's Fair and make a stadium for 250,000 and put a dome over it as soon as we get better players."

Casey Stengel, retired manager of the New York Mets, said that Friday.

"I walked too much at first and got sore. Now I'm taking better care of myself. I'm going out socially a little. They let me out two nights. But I'm not dancing yet, and I can't walk five miles or take a running course."

Casey Stengel also said some other things, all in a long distance news conference from his home in Glendale, Calif., in which he explained his new job with the Mets.

His remark about the World's Fair and a dome was the way he answered a question about his opinion of a proposed dome for Shea Stadium, home of the perennial last-place Mets.

His statement on dancing was in reply to a query about his health. The 75-year-old Stengel decided to give up managing after he fractured his left hip in a fall last July.

His new duties — as a scout — will keep him in California where he will not have to stray far from home in the Los Angeles suburb.

"It's my job," he said, "to cover all 20 American and National League clubs and check on the physical condition and the playing condition of these players. If they (the Mets) want my opinion on any ballplayer, I'll says yes or no."

The master of the nonsequitor also touched on one of his favorite topics — why aspiring young players should want to play for the Mets instead of any other team.

"If you're a young man, I don't know why you wouldn't go to a first class club like the Mets and let 11 million people see you instead of going to some other club and waiting five or six years before you can make it."

Then Lou Niss, the Mets' traveling secretary, took the telephone, and Casey asked him about a list of the players' winter addresses. Told it had been sent to him, Stengel yelled:

"Edna!...Edna!...I don't know if she's upstairs or not. Edna (Mrs. Stengel) has cleaned up the place, and I don't know if I have it or not."

Forest Control Explained In Homer Meeting

HOMER (Special) — Kisatchie forest land in Claiborne and Webster parishes, composing the Caney Game management area, is being managed to provide the maximum amount of hunting to the public at no charge, according to Bob Kimbell, district supervisor of seven parishes in Northwest Louisiana for Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission. Kimbell spoke to members of the Claiborne Hunting and fishing Club recently.

Robert LaVal, district ranger for this area, expiained that the national forests in Claiborne and Webster were land utilization projects operated by the soil conservation service since 1954, when they were turned over to the forest service, and in 1958 they became one ranger district of the Kisatchie National Forest.

LaVal who has been here six months, said his main job is to administer the forest resources of timber, water and wildlife. He told the group that an agreement has been entered into with the wildlife service whereby the Caney district has become a game management area under the supervision of the wildlife commission.

The Caney game area, which includes Corney, Middlefork and Caney tracts, totaling approximately 31,000 acres, is managed by M. E. Austin, biologist with the wildlife commission.

Circuit Crowns Under Fire By Grid Leaders

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Michigan State's top-ranked Spartans can wrap up the Big Ten championship while Arkansas and Nebraska can at least gain a tie for conference titles in major games on Saturday's college football program.

The Spartans, pointing for the Nov. 20 game with Notre Dame which could decide the national championship, take on Indiana. The Fighting Hoosiers have been fighting but not winning consistently, with six losses and victories over only Kansas State and Iowa.

Michigan State, with a perfect 8-0 record including of Iowa, smashing 35-0 conquest of Iowa, is 6-0 in the Big Ten. Ohio State and Minnesota follow at 4-1-0.

Arkansas, No. 2 in the latest Associated Press poll, faces Southern Methodist. The Razorbacks, unbeaten and untied in eight games, hold a one-game lead over Texas Tech in the Southwest Conference race. Tech meets Baylor, which has won only three of seven games.

Southern Methodist, 4-2-1 overall, has looked impressive in the past two weeks while defeating Texas 31-14 and Texas A&M 10-0.

Third-ranked Nebraska, also perfect in eight games, appears to have an easy one in Oklahoma State, 1-6-0. The Cornhuskers are one game in front of Missouri in the Big Eight. Missouri, No. 9 in The AP rankings, plays Oklahoma. The latter is in third place with 3-1-0 in the Conference and is 0-3 outside.

Notre Dame, led by Bill Wolski's five touchdowns in a 69-13 victory over Pitt last week-end, meets North Carolina. The fourth-rated Irish have rebounded to win their last five after a defeat by Purdue in their second game. North Carolina topped Clemson 17-13 last week for its fourth triumph. The Tar Heels have lost four.

Other games involving Top Ten teams match fifth-ranked Alabama, 6-1-1 and South Carolina, 4-4-0; Southern California, No. 6, and Pittsburgh; UCLA, No. 7, and Stanford; Tennessee, No. 8, and Mississippi; and Kentucky, No. 10 and Houston.

Alabama, the 1964 national champion with one defeat and one tie on its record, trampled LSU 31-7 last Saturday. The Crimson Tide is runner-up in the Southeastern Conference with 5-1-1. Auburn leads with 3-0-1.

Southern Cal and UCLA, each unbeaten in the Pacific Athletic Conference, are looking toward their Nov. 20 meeting to decide which will be the host team in the Rose Bowl.

USC figures to walk over Pitt. Stanford, though, appears capable of giving UCLA a rough time. The Indians number Air Force, Army, and Oregon among their five victims in eight games.

Unbeaten, twice-tied Tennessee leaped into the top ten this week after beating Georgia Tech 21-7. Mississippi has won four and lost four.

Kentucky has beaten Georgia, West Virginia and Vanderbilt in its most recent games for a 6-2-0 mark and should have little trouble with Houston, 3-5.

Tulsa, which clinched the Missouri Valley Conference crown last week and seems a good bet for the Gator Bowl, plays Wichita. In the Ivy League, Princeton and Dartmouth, also girding for a Nov. 20 showdown, face Yale and Cornell, respectively. Princeton and Dartmouth are tied for the league lead with perfect 5-0 records.

Other major games match Arizona and Air Force, Army and Wyoming, Brown and Harvard, Duke and Wake Forest, Georgia Tech and Virginia, Georgia and Auburn, West Virginia and Syracuse, Wisconsin and Illinois, Washington and Oregon State, Vanderbilt and Miami, Fla, Rice and Texas A&M, Ohio State and Iowa, Minnesota and Purdue, Northwestern and Michigan, Penn State and Navy and Oregon and California.

Hackleman Picks Baltimore To Win

By JIM HACKLEMAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Baltimore might have quarterback trouble, and Minnesota has hit stride — all belatedly. But somehow the Colts should beat the Vikings Sunday in another crucial match in the National Football League's Western Division.

That's the prediction of a pinch hitting pro football picker, rusty from a long layoff but fearless nonetheless — particularly with someone else's batting average to play with.

The resident genius in this department had a solid 8-3 last week, making it 55-32-3 over-all for a .632 percentage.

Now for Sunday:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Baltimore 24, Minnesota 21 — Johnny Unitas came out of last Sunday's key triumph over the Bears with a bad back, but Gary Cuozza is a good — if unheralded — sub quarterback and the Colts have the momentum with six straight victories.

Cleveland 31, New York 10 — The Eastern Division leaders crushed the Giants 38-14 in New York three weeks ago, and although the rebuilt Giants have jelled somewhat they aren't likely to cope with big Jim Browns running and Frank Ryans passing.

Green Bay 42, Los Angeles 10 — The Packers have been stumbling, but they're due to put it all together and the last-place Rams are likely to bear the brunt of an angry Packer comeback.

Detroit 20, San Francisco 7 — Lions don't have much in the way of an attack but oh, that defense. Ask the Packers, whose backfield was full of Lions all last Sunday.

Chicago 31, St. Louis 21 — Bears come off the defeat by the Colts with a vengeance against an erratic Cardinal outfit.

Washington 24, Philadelphia 17 — Redskins have pulled together for three victories in a row after five straight losses, showing they have a solid all-round team. Eagles due to take lost fifth straight.

Dallas 35, Pittsburgh 14 — It was the other way around when the two clubs met two Sundays ago, but the Cowboys will be at home this time — and probably have too much firepower for the Steelers.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

San Diego 31, Kansas City 20 — The Chargers, with running star Paul Lowe happily breaking records and with all that other talent, will be eager to dispose of a threat to their Western title drive.

Oakland 14, Buffalo 10 — The Raiders aren't likely to do much against the Eastern leaders' ground attack, but Oakland's passing should make the difference.

New York 24, Boston 14 — After several near-misses, the Jets have learned how to win — and they like it. But the weak Patriots haven't been able to shake the losing habit, and the charged-up Jets look like too much to handle.

Houston 45, Denver 35 — The Oilers do it on the ancient arm of George Blanda.

Caldwell Ban On Doe Season Is Confirmed

"The President of the Caldwell Parish Police Jury, W. H. Lay, has released a statement concerning the 1965-66 deer season in Caldwell Parish.

Lay said the Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission in New Orleans had been contacted on the matter and that agency said that published regulations were correct — there will be no doe season on the game preserve or any other portion of Caldwell parish.

Lay added that hunters are warned that every effort will be made to provide enough enforcement officials to see that the regulations are enforced.

Unofficial Tally Makes Marcos Philippine Head

MANILA (AP) — Unofficial election tallies Friday made Sen. Ferdinand E. Marcos, 48, wonder-boy of Philippine politics, the nation's sixth president

Incumbent President Diosdado Macapagal, 55, a dogged professional running for a second term, refused to concede defeat and claimed the unofficial count by the Philippine News Service could have been influenced by fake tally sheets. He said he would await returns of the official Election Commission — which is counting slowly. Even there, however, Marcos was posting a widening gap that was beginning to appear unbeatable.

Marcos, standard bearer of the Nacionalista party, finally spurted into a mathematically unbeatable lead, with counting of Tuesday's election votes entering its fourth day. Only Macapagal appeared to doubt the accuracy of the unofficial vote — which he praised four years ago when it similarly named him president and Manila papers termed Macapagal's cause lost.

With approximately 80 per cent of the vote tallied, Macos had 3,477,905 votes to 2,797,930 for Macapagal — a lead of 679,975 votes. The remaining uncounted votes were scattered over the eight major voting regions of the country and Macapagal was leading in only one of these.

Intimates of the defeated Liberal party president said they later. They said he hardly doubted his defeat but wished to announce it on the basis of official figures.

Counting for the vice-presidency, eight senatorial seats and 104 House seats continued in see-saw fashion.

Marcos appeared to be carrying his vice-presidential running mate, Sen. Fernando Lopez, who had 3,282,736 votes to 3,027,700 for his opponent, Sen. Gerardo Roxas, the son of the nation's first postwar president.

In the congressional contests Marcos was losing control of the House of Representatives and, although six of his senatorial candidates were leading, he would have at best only a precarious margin in the Senate.

The new president will be inaugurated Jan. 1 for a four-year term. First he must be proclaimed elected next month by a special session of Congress. The man who will proclaim the newly elected candidates is the president of the Senate — Ferdinand E. Marcos.

United Givers' Fund Progress Is Cited Here

General Campaign Chairman J. C. "Mose" Loftin Friday announced that United Givers' Fund workers have pushed to within $100,000 of the 1965-66 goal of $284,934.

Loftin said, "I hope only one more report meeting will be required — next week — and that we can wrap up our drive for these 13 deserving charitable and character - building agencies."

The following breakdown on the categories of the drive were announced during the fifth report meeting: Monroe — $133,818 collected of a goal of $196,770, or 68 per cent; West Monroe area — $24,521 of a $56,897 goal, or 43 per cent; Sterlington area — $4,034 of a $5,425 goal, or 74.2 per cent; and professional and individual gifts — $22,665 of a $25,842 goal, or 87.7 per cent.

At right is the rajah look, so regal, so right. Just the ensemble for grand entrances. Styled by The Sydneys in rich brocade of cotton, the costume starts with simple scoop neck sleeveless full-length sheath. Its own three - quarter evening coat is fashioned in exotic fantasy.

Reflecting the new fashion trends are the magnificent gowns that herald the return of bareness, strapless bodices banded in mink, flowing stoles or mysterious one - shoulder effects. All destined to put you in the fashion spotlight.

Simultaneously the covered - up look is also important and brings with it regally cut coats and evening ensembles that are steeped in Far - Eastern fantasy. For the theater, bask in the drama of a brocade costume trimmed in white mink. For added excitement, many of the styles are enhanced by glittering crystal and pearl embroidery, bringing new richness and depth into focus.

Celebrate this holiday season in fashions at home at any after-six occasion. Enjoy the fabulous after-dark world in creations enhanced by exotic styling and know you'll look as enchanting at the end of a memorable evening as you did at the start.

FOR THAT ONE special knight, a gown to dazzle him. Designed by Bob Bugnand for the woman who is frankly feminine and wants fashion to echo her viewpoint, her evening image is. the beguilingly bare look of the gown on the left. The magnificent twill satin gown has a pert bow accent which calls attention to the sophisticated raised waist and molded skirt. A new symmetry of the panel front bodice, softness is revealed by Joan Leslie in the sinuous crepe at right. The simple scooped decolletage flows into a delightfully deep V-back, side-wrapped and accented with a bow and ripples of ruffles that cascade down the back and around the hem.

Lamkin HDC Has November Club Meeting

The November meeting of the Lamkin Home Demonstration Club was held in the home of Mrs. Fred E. Poe, Monday, at which time the members were thanked for their assistance with the fair booth, a blue ribbon winner.

Reports were given by Mrs. R. E. Brookings on house furnishings and Christmas decorations. She showed several examples of decorations that could be made to ornament the house for the coming season.

Mrs. James F. Monroe reported on consumer education, followed by Mrs. Audrey Dawson, who gave a demonstration on "How Convenient Is Your Bathroom Storage."

After a brief recreation period, with Mrs. Monroe the winner of the game, refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Poe, to Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Ollie Lynn, Mrs. Vivian Brinson, a new member; Mrs. C. T. Baird, Mrs. Brookings, Mrs. Monroe, Mrs. W. A. Roche, Mrs. L. F. Semmes, Mrs. R. C. Tate, Mrs. S. J. Taylor, Mrs. P. J. Bonin, Mrs. Wylie Moore, Mrs. J. W. Braswell, and Mrs. H. J. Strain.

Utilizing Heirlooms Discussed

Mrs. Fred E. Poe, 2107 Oliver Road, was the hostess for the regular meeting, Thursday, of the West Oak Garden Club. Seasonal decorations were placed at vantage points in the entrance, foyer, living room and dining area for the occasion.

Mrs. Dale Cronk presided at the business session as Mrs. T. G. Luckett, treasurer, gave the budget report.

Lon Duckelman was the guest speaker, chosing as his topic "Values That Haven't Been Discovered", pertaining to family heirlooms as home decorating accessories. He said such items need not have monetary value, but personal closeness. Accessories, he stated, could be made from old cotton scales, dumpling cutters, biscuit cutters and milk strainers; and, several small antique reproductions make interesting framed wall decorations.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Cronk, Mrs. Leslie Clark, Mrs. Roy Colquette, Mrs. H. B. Cruthirds, Mrs. L. T. Harper, Mrs. J. F. Heimgartner, Mrs. Luckett, Mrs. Norm Perry and several guests, Mrs. Ann Hughes, Mrs. Tom Hassion and Mrs. David Smith Jr.

Members were reminded to bring homemade gifts for exchanging at the next meeting, December 9.

Spotless Stoves Make Cooking Interesting

By Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise:

I recently moved into a house, and the kitchen stove had been kept in a spotless condition, so I want to keep it that way.

Please let me know the best way to do this.

Jane L.

Dear Jane:

The most important thing is to wipe off any spills or burnt-on food as soon as the burners have cooled, so that there is no grease or spilled food build-up.

But if it does become necessary to do a bang-up cleaning job, here's what to do:

First, place all removable parts from your stove top (grids, burner and drip trays) in your kitchen sink, and completely cover them with hot water from the faucet, adding about one-half cup of electric dishwasher compound, and let soak over night.

Clean the rest of the stove top with a cloth or sponge, wrung out in hot, detergent water.

Don't forget the range hood (if your stove has one).

Range hoods have filters to catch the grease in exhaust fumes, and collect dust as the fan pulls the air through the filter. Check this filter often and clean when necessary, in order to keep it unplugged — and your exhaust system will run more quietly and be more efficient in its operation.

Next morning you will find the carbon and grease, which has soaked off the stove parts, floating on top of the cold water in the sink.

Scrub all parts with a stiff brush, to remove any carbon, grease or film which did not soak off.

Drain out water in the sink, and re-fill with hot, sudsy water. Finish the cleaning job with a sponge, then dry the parts so they will not drip on the floor when you carry them back to your nice, clean stove.

DEAR ABBY

Snorts, Snores, Moans And Groans Continue

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Apropos snoring mates. Mine snores so loud, it's separate rooms for us. When we travel, we request separate hotel rooms. Separate floors is better, adjoining rooms isn't far enough away from him. It hasn't interfered with our love life, either. A woman who doesn't get her sleep makes a poor mate. She's cranky, irritable and has no energy. Nuts to what people say. I need my sleep.

MILWAUKEE MRS.

DEAR ABBY: If you come up with a remedy for snoring, let me know. I've tried everything. The plastic ear plugs almost punctured my ear-drums, and the beeswax ear plugs fell out of my ears and stuck in my hair. My doctor gave me sleeping pills but I'm afraid I'll become addicted. Believe it or not my husband is a policeman and he is afraid to sleep alone. If I slip out and sleep on the couch, he comes looking for me. This hero is 56 years old.

BROOKLYN

DEAR ABBY: When our family decreased and there was a spare bedroom available, I took it over because my husband's snoring disturbed my sleep.

It was like closing the door on an intimacy of 31 years. Well, Abby, after five years of sleeping apart, my advice to a young bride is, "Don't, under any circumstances, take a room by yourself. Stuff your ears, put a pillow over your head, take a sleeping pill, but don't leave his bed. And don't let him leave yours."

Take it from a 58-year-old woman. Something dies when a man and his wife quit sleeping together. I can't explain it. It's not sex, either. It's something more important. And you'll never get it back. I know. I've tried.

FOOLISH

DEAR ABBY: My husband has snored. off and on for 33 years and I wouldn't think of trying to cure him. You see, Albert snores only when he has a guilty conscience. After having been kept awake most of the night because he's snored up a storm, I cross - examine him. And sure enough — he's been up to something. Either women or gambling. He's almost 60 now and he's cut down on his snoring. I presume he has less to feel guilty about. I'm sure he still gambles, however.

Mr. Editor... Tell Me, Please

If you have a question you want answered, call or write, "Mr. Editor, Tell Me, Please" at the Morning World and News-Star. We'll be glad to get the information and pass it along to you in this column.

From books that I have read, I assume that there was more than one Napoleon. Could you please explain who the different Napoleons were and what their roles were?

Napoleon I was the famous emperor of France who is so noted for his military conquests in Europe. He was finally defeated and exiled to Saint Helena. But only after he had become known as the master of Europe.

Napoleon II was the son of Napoleon I. He was first named King of Rome but in 1814 his father's dynasty crumbied and Napoleon I abdicated. Napoleon II was taken to Austria with his mother Marie Louise, archduchess of Austria. Austria would not allow him to succeed to the duchies of that country and he was granted the title "Duke of Reichstadt. Napoleon II died in 1832 after being a pawn of European power politics most of his life.

Napoleon III was the nephew of Napoleon I. On the overthrow of Napoleon I a law was passed in France banishing the Bonaparte family from the country. He returned to the country, however, and in 1848 the law was abrogated. On Dec. 8, 1852, he was proclaimed Emperor of France. In 1870 the empire fell and Napolen III died in England, Jan. 9, 1873.

Brocken bow, or the spectre of the Brocken, is a phenomenon frequently observed on mountain peaks and recorded in literature with special reference to the Brocken, is an enormously magnified shadow of an observer cast when the sun is low upon the upper surfaces of clouds that are below the mountain. The shadow, often accompanied by colored bands, is known as the spectre of the Brocken and is given a mystical significance in the folklore of the mountain. The phenomenon of rainbowlike bands around a shadow on clouds and called the Brocken bow or glory is commonly observed in airplanes.

He admitted personal responsibility for the attack and died Jan. 5, 1947, while on trial before the International War Crimes tribunal. During his career he rose from Naval Attache in Washington to naval chief of staff in April of 1941.

Is there really such a place as the Okefinokee swamp or is it just legendary?

There is indeed an Okefinokee swamp. It is a primitive swamp and natural wildlife refuge in Southeastern Georgia and northern Florida. It is a shallow, saucer-shaped depression approximately 20 miles wide and 4 miles long. Exotic flowers abound, including kitchen plants, floating hearts, lilies and rare orchids. The swamp is populated with deer, bear, raccoons, alligators, snakes and many varieties of fish, turtles, and lizards. There are at least 200 different species of birds including the ibises.

In 1937, 331,900 acres were set aside as the Okefenokee National Wildlife Refuge.

I have a son in Viet Nam. Could you tell me what time it is there when it is noon here?

When it is noon in Monroe it is 1:30 a.m. the following day in the time zone that includes most of Viet Nam. So, that would probably be the time for your son. If not, it would only vary about 30 minutes.

I am 18 years old and would like to know how to get an identification card (ID card).

There is no such thing for a civilian in this country as an ID card as such. The usually accepted proofs of age — we assume that this is what you want — are driver's licenses and Selective Security (draft) cards. If you are an 18-year-old boy you are required to have a draft card. If you are a girl, a driver's license with your picture is about the best ID card you can get.

How will the recent increase in Social Security payments effect my Old Age Pension which I receive from the Department of Public Welfare? Also, what is the duty of the case welfare visitor who calls on me twice a year?

Joseph S. Worley, public welfare director with the Ouachita Parish Department of Public Welfare, said the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which furnishes approximately 75 per cent of the funds used for Old Age Pensions, requires that benefits received from social security payments be included in each person's income statement. Old Age pension payments are figured so as to cover living expenses of the applicant. In many cases, those who received the increase in social security payments had their pension checks cut because the increase was added to their income. Those drawing less than the maximum $82 a month were affected by this act. So the increase in social security will not actually boost your income unless your living needs are such that you require the maximum grant given, because whatever is added to your social security payments must be deducted from your Old Age Pension, if your payments total more than your needs.

The case visitor you ask about is required, under law, to visit those in his or her area receiving old age benefits at least once a year in order to redetermine the applicant's eligibility to receive the pension. The workers spend only as long a time as is necessary in each home to determine whether or not the person's income has changed in the past year.

Do you have to have a birth certificate to get social security payments at age 65? Also, can I sign up for the Medicare program if I am over 65 and sitll working?

If you have proof of your age, other than a birth certificate, you are not required to secure a certificate in order to receive social security benefits. You may obtain a birth certificate, however, from the Louisiana State Board of Health at New Orleans. Yes, sign up for Medicare even though your earnings may prevent you from actually drawing these monthly social security benefits.

● ● ●

I will be 62 in December and am trying to get my birth certificate. I have several proofs of age, but was toid I should get a photostatic copy of my original social security application. I got my social security card in 1940, but gave the wrong age at that time. Therefore, the copy of the card will not help to prove my age. What must I do to get this straightened up for both my social security benefits later and my birth certificate which I need now?

In the first place, you do not actually need a birth certificate in order to receive social security payments. Call the local office of the U. S. Social Security and tell them your problem. They will assist you in making our your application. The office personnel said they accept old family Bibles as references if the Bibles have not been altered since the birth was recorded. They also use old insurance policies as legal proof of age, old letters containing references to a person's age and other sources. Of course, the birth certificate is preferred, but in any case, the office will be able to help you if you do not have one.

What was the "Reformation?"

This is a very complex historical question that would take literally pages to answer fully and completely — and then some historian would probably take issue with certain points. But, generally speaking and without any great detail, the reformation was the religious revolution of the 16th century which divided western Christendom into two camps — Catholic and Protestant. It was a complex movement with many causes.

Could you give me populations of some of the world's largest cities? What are the three most populous?

Open House At School Slated For Tuesday

Ouachita Elementary and Junior High School on Nutland Road will hold open house Tuesday from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Parents and the public are invited to attend the event, visit the classrooms, and meet the faculty, A. L. Lewis, principal, said.

The school plant, which was opened in the fall of 1963 offers a complete curriculum in the elementary program with special education and accelerated classes for gifted pupils. The junior high offers a strong academic program and electives in art, home living, reading, Spanish, vocal music, and band.

The Ouachita Junior High School Cubettes will serve as guides. Assisting with the courtesies at the reception will be girls from the home living department.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 11-13

Teamsters Union Stepping Up Struggle To Determine Hoffa's Successor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The princelings of the Teamsters Union empire are stepping up their quietly intense power struggle to determine who will ascend the throne if and when king James R. Hoffa goes to prison.

The stakes in the backstage maneuvering for the presidency of the giant union are tremendous, with wide implications not only for the Teamsters, but for organized labor in general and for the federal government.

With the job go not only $75,000 a year in salary and such trappings as plush office in the Teamsters' "marble palace" headquarters in the shadow of the nation's Capitol, but control of the world's biggest union with 1.7 million members and $1 billion in assets.

Then there's the question of the Teamsters rejoining the AFL-CIO as a respected member of the nation's "house of labor" after eight years of being outcasts.

The government too, especially the Labor Department, is interested in seeing whether Hoffa's rough-and-ready image will be replaced by a more conservative figure.

The jockeying among the union's 13 vice presidents has been going on in earnest ever since Hoffa's first federal conviction and eight-year prison sentence on jury-tampering charges 20 months ago.

But the struggle surfaced for the first time only a few days ago when Teamsters' Vice President Einar Mohn of Los Angeles announced he'll be a candidate if Hoffa does not run for re-election at the union's convention next summer.

Translated, that means Mohn's hat is in the ring if the government wins its seven-year battle to jail Hoffa by then.

Hoffa — also facing a five-year federal mail fraud sentence in connection with multimillion-dollar loans from the Teamsters' pension fund — has a Dec. 6 deadline to ask the U.S. Supreme Court to review his Chattanooga, Tenn., jury-tampering conviction.

If the high court should deny Hoffa a hearing, thus sending him almost immediately to prison, the internal fight to take over the union would break out into an open free-for-all.

Meantime, however the Teamsters' palace guard continues to regard Hoffa as a dangerous antagonist.

Vice President John B. Backhus of Philadelphia got nowhere in demanding Hoffa's resignation after his federal convictions.

Backhus was pressured into signing an agreement along with all the other Teamsters vice presidents to hold off at least until Hoffa's appeals are exhausted.

Why then Mohn's public announcement as a candidate to succeed Hoffa when it's still not certain Hoffa is washed up?

Here's the way Teamsters' insiders explain it: The fight to replace Hoffa has boiled down basically to a struggle between Mohn and Vice President Harold Gibbons, onetime close associate of Hoffa who broke with him in a bitter personal quarrel but is still secretly the No. 2 man in the Teamsters' headquarters here.

The rest of the vice presidents are regarded as too old, too ill or too disinterested in leaving the relative safety of their individual Teamsters chiefs around the country.

Mohn, isolated on the West Coast, is worried about Gibbons quietly gathering the reins of power through his role in union headquarters here. Thus, his public announcement as a candidate to succeed Hoffa.

Gibbons, whose power base is St. Louis, has been spending almost as much time here as there, acting in effect as Hoffa's top assistant in relaying policies and orders throughout the Teamsters empire.

Mohn is 59, Gibbons 55. Another vice president in the younger age bracket sometimes mentioned as a possible Hoffa successor is Frank Fitzsimmons, 57, of Detroit.

One thing appears certain. The eventual winner in the Teamsters' sweepstakes won't emerge until the king is politically dead — behind prison bars with his crown and power shorn for good.

The Teamsters know Hoffa doesn't give up easily.

Ruston May Get Institute Branch

RUSTON (Special) — Dr. Bruce Graham, director of Gulf South Research Institute in Louisiana, said in a speech to the Ruston Kiwanis Club that between three and five branches of the institute would be established in the state. He said there is a strong possibility that Ruston would receive one of the branches, possibly connected with forestry research.

The national budget for research is $20 billion with 60 per cent going to 25 colleges and universities, three of which are in the south. Disneyland is a product of the institute, and the speaker noted the advances being made in science health and production because of the facilities of the institute.

Dr. Graham was associated with the Stanford Institute in California before coming to Louisiana. He spoke here Thursday.

Ruling Is Given On Jury's Role

BASTROP (Special) — The State Attorney General's Office has ruled that the Morehouse Police Jury has no authority to set hunting regulations in the Georgia - Pacific Game Management area.

Assistant District Attorney Joe Rolfe White said he received a letter from Carroll Buck, first assistant to the attorney general, in answer to White's request for a ruling on the issue.

Buck pointed out that the Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission does have the power to set regulations in game management areas.
